EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

THE Democrats are no fonder of David Davis now than they were in 1877.

NEW YORK will follow Ohio's lead. If you don't believe it ask John Kelly.

THE glorious Democracy has had the satisfaction of snatching an office which it was unable to hold. As usual, it has nothing but odium to show for its efforts.

THEY call him ex-President Bayard now. Cruel sarcasm. He never will come so near to the Presidency again. Davis is too big a man to be easily displaced.

INTERCEPTED telegram from Indianapolis to Springfield, Ohio: "To J. W. Bookwalter. Shake. I know how it is myself. How low did you drain the barral? Yours in collapse, W. H. English."

SINCE the Ohio election Orange Noble has concluded his best policy will be to sit on the bung-hole of his barrel during the remainder of the campaign and keep his hands in his pockets. Bookwalter's untimely cutting off, despite the unlimited use of cash, has alarmed him.

ANDY GREGG is not quite as bow-legged as Dunkle, nor has he sold himself to Meek for a consideration, but then he has not owned a station all his life nor does he believe in subsidizing Democratic newspapers If the people think he will not make a good sheriff on that account they need not vote for him.

OF course Tammany will show its zeal for the ticket by holding a ratification meeting in the wigwam. The walls will be decorated with approriate sentiments from the platfrom. John Kelly will sit under one commending Tilden and Reform and F. B. Thurber will sit under one denouncing the olemargarine ring. Let us have harmony!

LET us see, wasn't Mr. Bookwalter nominated for Governor on a platform which made the immortal declaration: "Resolved, That the humanities are non partisan?" He certainly was, and judging by the size of Governor Foster's majority Mr. Bookwalter has reason to believe that so far as treatment of him is concerned the inhumanities are not confined to any one party in Ohio.

ONE of the coolest pieces of impudence in the New York Democratic platform is this: "We demand a thorough and immediate investigation into the Star Route and other frauds upon the Federal Teasury, and a vigorous prosecution, already too long delayed, of all the participants in these grave crimes." The demand for an immediate investigation seems to be a little late, in view of the fact that investigation has already gone far enough to have several men indicted.

NOBODY in Ohio or anywhere else will be sorry to see Mr. Bookwalter slip back into the obscurity from which he emerged when he bought his nomination for Governor. He is not the kind of man the American public gets enthusiastic about. He was traveling from Cincinnati to Springfield on election day and was encountered on the cars by a reporter of Cleveland Herald. He asked the reporter how the XXth District was going, and when told that every Republican would vote, if for no other reason than on account of his love for Garfield, he said, sneeringly: 'Haven't they got over their sympathy for Garfield yet?' He knows they haven't now. He is about the poorest specimen of the barrel attachment statesman which the Democracy has given us yet.

A Knotty Problem.

The trial of the murderers of the girl Cramer at New Haven goes on, but attracts little attention; Guiteau's great crime, like Aaron's serpent, having swallowed all the rest, in public estimation. Decent people, indeed, have long ago tired of the foul, unending stream of murder, divorce and adultery cases which winds its way from year's end to year's end through the press.

Naturally, they begin to loathe the whole matter; both the crime and the class with whom the crime originates. They will read and know nothing about them. Why should the current of their useful, decorous lives be disturbed by the misdoings of vulgar fast girls and their brutal murderers? They will not even concern themselves enough about such tragedies to find if there is any help for them. Yet the truth is that this murder of Jennie Cramer is not an isolated case, but a fair indication of the condition of society in the class to which it belongs. The tens of thousands of loud-talking, flashily dressed girls who crowd the streets and cheap places of amusement in our cities and large towns are not a pleasant or picturesque study for moralists or Christians of refined tastes. But what is the use of their spending money in building schools and churches and Sunday-schools for the children of the next generation? Here are their mothers; and if they are left unchanged buildings of a very different sort are all that will be needed for their children.

We are not talking now of the class of women who have made vice a trade. As we understand the evidence, this girl Cramer did not belong to them. She had the reputation of being "a decent, respectable girl" among her neighbors, in spite of the fact that she went to variety shows and saloons with young men, remaining out nearly all night. The standard of manners is low in Jennie Cramer's class. There is the secret of the crime and degradation of its women. The mothers of such girls, hard worked at home, finding their own sole pleasure in life in some poor display and bit of finery, are satisfied that "the young people should have their fling." When they send their children to the public school, observe the tawdry flounces and dirty ribbons on their ragged clothes. This seems a trifle, but every wise woman knows that there is no surer sign of moral corruption than filth and finery. As the girls grow older they find places, probably, in factories, side by side with course, licentious men, or in retail shops at wages of from three to six dollars per week. How are they to pay for their board and the fine clothes which they have been taught are the one desideratum in life? The same silly vanity forbids them to take service. Then comes, as in this girl Cramer's case, the arsenic to improve the complexion, the fine dress, the imitation pearls, and—the means to buy them. The ranks of prostitution are recruited from this would-be-genteel class, not from domestic servants.

Let any Christian reformer drop for an hour his pet scheme for elevating the world, whether it be the conversion of the Jews or the Polynesians, and follow any day a group of these girls home from their work. If they are Americans they have not sensual faces. There is none of that hopeless predominance of the animal nature in mouth and eye which puts the mark of the beast on the women of the lower orders in some European races. As a rule, their features are clear and fine, their eyes sparkling, eager; the whole natural physical character is nervous, delicate and refined. With proper training these would be the same women as those who conquered New England by their endurance and piety, or who are conquering the West now in many a rude cabin by their unflagging energy and high-heartedness. The race is the same; the education is different. But note the vulgar insolence of their talk; their swagger, their insane, giggling efforts to attract the notice of men passing by; the vacuity, the incipient depravity, the hopelessness of it all. There is no sight more tragic on earth than one of these women, meant by God to be a pure wife and mother, frisking jauntily down her way to ruin.

It is not only to this class of young girls we would call attention, but to the habits and manners of those who hold a much higher social rank. Our educated orders know little more of the real lives of these young people than they do of the thoughts and private occupations of lower animals. Let them read as a mere matter of curiosity, one of the cheap novels which are sold by the tens of thousand among them, or one of their "society papers" with their "Personals" and "hankerchief language" and all the rest of the silly pitiful nastiness. The young men and women who take delight in these things are in all probability virtuous. But how long will they remain so?

The temptation to ruin, too, we urge again, does not come to the native American girl through any natural proclivity to vice, but through her vanity, her intense desire to be noticed, her nervous craving for excitement. She is not born with any ineradicable base taint of blood; she is worth saving. How shall she be saved?—N. Y. Tribune.

AN exceedingly significant declaration was made by Mr. Gladstone Thursday at the Guildhull ceremony, when the Corporation of London presented him with their laudatory resolutions in a golden casket. He said that he would rejoice at the adoption of any form of local government in Ireland which did not impair the supremacy of the Imperial Government. Perhaps the great Liberal statesman means to crown his brilliant series of Irish remedial measures with a bill granting to the island a local legislative body, with powers similar to those exercised by the Legislatures of our States. This would not impair the supreme authority of the British Crown and Parliament, and it would give to Ireland such control over purely local affairs as would test the capacity of her people for orderly and beneficial self-government.

MR. BAYARD'S career as President protempore of the Senate and heir-apparent of the White House was so brief as to be ludicrous. He stepped up to the chair on Monday and stepped down again on Thursday His private reflections on the folly of a party's grabbing an office to which it has no right would be interesting reading. Mr. Baryard is nothing if not dignified, and his summary ejection from the chair as an interloper must have rasped his sensibilities cruelly.

THE unseemly quarrel of the surgeons over Garfield's case is to be utilized by Guiteau's attorney in his defense. It will not tend to make Dr. Hammond a popular favorite if he lends his aid to any scheme to assist the assassin to escape punishment, even though it be to gratify his own personal spleen against Bliss and his coadjutors.

KELLY caves and promises to support the ticket. He will not burst a blood-vessel in his efforts to elect it. He will not give up until he has completely smashed the Tilden machine in New York State, and he is the boy that can do it.

GUITEAU has been arraigned, and nobody tried to shoot him. The law is going to take care of him. If he were to be shot now it would be almost a favor to him, as his life is made miserable by his constant fear.

MR. Bookwalter predicted the night before election that he would carry Ohio and gave it as his opinion that the Democrats would owe the result to his personal efforts. They coincide in the opinion now.

County Treasurer.

J. Philip Gephart, our candidate for Treasurer, is an honest farmer, a Christian gentleman, just the man the farmers of Centre county should elect to the office of county treasurer. He is not a rich man, but he is industrious and honest, and the nomination was tendered to him without his seeking or even knowledge. He will make a good officer if elected, and will be elected if the people will take the trouble to study their own interest. We should vote for men who are not office-seekers, men who are sought out for the position and not men who go begging for a public office. None know better than the Democrats of this county what swarms of anxious men were importuning everyone they met to do something for them who were running all over the county just before the Democratic convention. The people ought to set down on those fellows and put in a new set of men at the Court House; "bust the old ring" who have made ring politics a study for years and put in a set of men who will go to work in a plain, honest way to serve the people truly and honestly; men who have not sought these positions; men who have not had to bind themselves up with promises in order to get their nominations and after that to get votes. Let the people show the local politicians and ringsters of this county that they are doing this themselves, and pick out their men from those who can enter upon the duties of their several positions with no friends to reward nor enemies to punish. Then will the true interest of the people be served. A vote for J. Philip Gephart will be a vote in the interest of the whole people. Let the slaves of party step up to the polls an election day and vote, for once in their lives without any regard to their previous condition of servitude. Mr. Gephart may not approach everyone to ask for a vote and those he does ask he may not impress as does the smooth-tongued ringster. He is not a trained politician, but he is all the better for that, and will make a good treasurer. He is all solid for honesty and efficiency. He never cheated anyone on a cow trade, but he will make a good treasurer for all that. Sharpness in trading cows is to our mind no recommendation to public favor.

THOSE Democratic newspapers, that on the morning after the election pointed to the reported decrease in Foster's majority from two years ago, as evidence of his rapidly increasing unpopularity, are singularly silent on the subject of his majority now that the real figures show such a healthy increase over last time. "Calico Charlie" has a hold in Ohio that no Democrat can hope to overcome.

GUITEAU has written to his lawyer not to waste any effort trying to prove his "actual insanity." He says: "Legal insanity is all I claim." It is to be hoped he will soon find that for the "legal insanity" which leads a man to commit murder there is a punishment which is both legal and actual.

NOBLE is losing heart. Wolfe's vile assaults on Governor Hoyt have alienated from him his Republican friends and solidified the party behind Baily, while it is not to be denied that he is gaining Democratic support in Philadelphia and along the northern frontier.

GENERAL BAILY does not consider it necessary to make violent attacks upon men of established reputation, in order to attract public attention. He is conducting a quiet, dignified canvass, and commands the respect of men of all parties.

A VOTE for Henry C. Campbell at the coming elections will be a vote in the interest of economy and the faithful administration of our county affairs.

AN attempt will be made to convict Bliss of malpractice to help Guiteau to escape.

A VOTE for Philip Gephart for Treasurer will be a vote for an honest farmer, just the kind of a man the farmers of Centre county should vote for.

IT is a little late for the New York Democrats to ask the people to vindicate Mr. Tilden, ciphers, coparceners and all. Yet that is what they are about to do. The Republicans will not shrink from that issue. They have been wishing for a chance to meet it since 1877.

EDWARD L. GRAY, the Republican candidate for Recorder, never sought the office to which he is nominated, being away sick at the time. He is not an office seeker. His nomination was not brought about by any combination or ring manipulation, but was freely tendered by the delegates and accorded with unanimous consent.

Davis President of the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—3 p. m. After the executive session the objection to Logans' resolution to proceed to elect a president pro tem. was withdrawn. Senator Davis was elected President by 36 votes to 34. Senators Bayard and Anthony were appointed a committee and assisted Senator Davis to the chair. After thanking the Senators for the honor done him, Senator Logan offered a resolution that a committee of two be appointed to inform the President of the United States that Senator Davis had been elected.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

From Patton Township.

Since my last letter we have had fine showers, and consequently we have completed our fall seeding.

Well, we have "taken in" the fair—or, rather, it has taken us in. This year it seemed to have been all diplomas, and no encouragement nor cash for farmers. It is the opinion of the best people of this section that the sooner the fair of the Centre County Agricultuaal Society changes hands, or at least name, the better. What would be better would be the turning it into a race course and not mix honest people in with it to give it respectability.

We must here call your attention to our candidate for Commissioner, Henry Campbell, of Ferguson township, who is a Christian gentleman and worthy of all our support. He is a man who will not fail, if elected, to render a strict account of all moneys placed in his hands, whether for electioneering purposes or not, and will never need the service of a sham "investigation" of his affairs by a committee to give his honesty a respectable appearance. He is one of Centre county's active producers and not an office-seeker, and if he should ever be placed in a position of influence would not control the County Committee in such a manner as to secure the nomination for any office on the first ballot. Henry Campbell is a man who can and will be elected by the honest Republican voters of Centre county. OTHELLO.

Politics and Church.

A communication signed "Voter", was received at this office yesterday, in which the writer wants to know if the County Treasurer's office is run in the interest of any church. Here is what he says:

MR. EDITOR—Is the Treasurer's office to be used for the benefit of the German Reformed church? Many voters would like to know this, for when the Democratic Convention nominated Keller, Siney Hoffer exclaimed, "There's two hundred dollars for our church!" Did this candidate make such promises in order to secure the nomination for the Treasurership? Now, we want no officers who run solely to help a particular church, especially where all the other denominations outnumber it ten to one. And further, I learn that this same candidate doesn't give anything to help other churches in his own town, but wants all of them to help elect him. VOTER.

Only for the Boys of Bellefonte.

Of course everyone of you saw the big horse-shoe tobacco cart displayed on our streets this week. It was certainly a rather costly and somewhat elegant advertising conveyance. Now everybody knows that the horse-shoe is a symbol of good luck. I have not time now to write out my reasons, but my dear citizen boys, believe me, it will be no good luck for you to begin the use of tobacco by smoking or chewing what I hear many other persons call "the filthy weed." Boys, don't begin, and you will always be thankful for this advice from your sincere friend. R. CRITTENDEN.

Poetry.

James A. Garfield.

BY M. J. SAVAGE.

With finger on lip and breath bated,
With an eager and sad desire,
The world stood hushed, as it waited
For the click of the fateful wire.

"Better": and civilization
Breathed freer and hoped again.
"Worse": and through every nation
Went thrilling a throb of pain.

A cry at midnight! and listening—
"Dead!" tolled out the bells of despair;
And millions of eyelids were glistening
And sobbed the sad tones on the air.

But who is he toward whom all eyes are turning?
And who is he for whom all hearts are yearning?

What is the threat at which earth holds its breath
While one lone man a duel fights with death?

No thrones are hanging in suspense;
No kingdoms totter to their fall.
Peace, with her gentle influence,
Is hovering over all.

'Tis just one man at Elberon
Who waiteth day by day,
Whose patience all our hearts have won
As ebbs his life away.

His birth-day waked no cannon-boom;
No purple round him hung;
A back-woods cabin gave him room;
And storms his welcome sung.

He seized the sceptre of that king,
Who treads a freehold sod;
He wore upon his brow that ring
That crowns a son of God.

By his own might he built a throne,
With no inhuman aris,
And by his manhood reigned alone
O'er fifty million hearts.

Thus is humanity's long dream,
Its highest, holiest hope begun
To harden into fact, and gleam
A city 'neath the sun:—

A city, not like that which came
In old-time vision from the skies;
But wrought by man through blood and flame,
From solid earth to rise:—

Man's city: the ideal reign
Where every human right hath place;
Where blood, nor birth, nor priest again
Shall bind the weary race:—

In which no king but man shall be.

'Twas this that thrilled with loving pain
The heart of all the earth, as he Died by the sobbing main.

For, mightiest ruler of the earth,
He was the mightiest, not because
Of priestly touch, or blood, or birth,
But by a people's laws.

O GARFIELD! brave and patient soul!
Long as the tireless tides shall roll
About the Long Branch beaches, where
Thy life went out upon the air,
So long thy land, from sea to sea,
Will hold thy manhood's legacy.

'TOTHER day as I was twining
Roses for a crown to dine in
What, of all things, midst the heap,
Should I light on, fast asleep,
But the little desperate elf—
The tiny traitor—Love, himself!
By the wings I pinched him up
Like a bee, and in a cup
Of my wine, I stirred and sank him,
And what do you think I did—I drank him!
Faith I thought him dead. Not he!
There he lives with ten fold glee;
And now this moment, with his wings
I feel him tickling my heart strings.
—Leigh Hunt.

Our Story Teller.

Graves of Presidents.

At the time of the erection of a handsome monument over the remains of Andrew Johnson in June, 1878, the New York World devoted several columns of its space to a description of the resting places of the dead Presidents of the United States. Since that time a new shaft has been erected over the tomb of Jefferson, and action has been taken concerning some of the other graves, but for the general reader the merest recapitulation on the principal facts narrated in that article will answer all useful purposes. Washington's remains were in 1837 removed from the old vault where they had hitherto lain to a roomy brick vault, simple and substantial. His body and that of his wife are inclosed in coffins of Pennsylvania marble, one bearing an American shield, the other the words of 'Martha Washington.' These are placed in the vestibule of the vault proper, which is closed against the public with an iron gate. John Adams and his son, John Quincy Adams, sleep side by side beneath the Unitarian Church of Quincy, Mass., their wives with them. The tomb is an apartment in the front part of the cellar, walled in with large blocks of roughly faced granite, and having for a door a slab seven feet by three, with massive hinges and lock of wrought iron. In the church above, on either side of the pulpit, are tablets of clouded marble, each surmounted by a bust and inscribed with the familiar and high sounding epitaphs of the only father and son that ever held the highest office in the gift of the American people.

Readers of the World are acquainted with the circumstances attendant on the erection of a new monument to Jefferson and the cession of the family burying ground to the care of the country. Jefferson and his wife and daughter were buried in a thick growth of woods a few hundred yards to the right of the road leading from Charlottsville to Monticello, in a small private cemetery about 100 feet square. It was time that its care should be undertaken by the public, for when the World's correspondent visited the spot two years ago he found the inclosure matted with weeds, the walls breached, the graves trodden, level with the ground, and the coarse granite obelisk over Jefferson's resting place chipped and battered by relic hunters till only two lines of the inscription were decipherable. Madison reposes in such a scene and amid such surroundings as the mention of his name would lead one to look for. Montpelier, near Orange, Va., in the centre of a soft picturesque region, is a fair and trim estate, and the cemetery lot in the centre of a level field, well kept and nicely turfed. From a pedestal of four pieces rises a graceful and slender obelisk, inscribed with Madison's name and birth date, while, by its side a less lofty shaft marks the resting place of the fairest of republican queens, Dolly Madison. Monroe's body reposes in Hollywood cemetery, Va., on an eminence near its extreme southwestern limit, commanding a beautiful view of Richmand and the James. Above the body is a huge block of polished Virginia marble supporting a coffin shaped block of granite, on which are brass plates suitably inscribed. The whole is surrounded by a sort of gothic temple—four pillars supporting a peaked roof, to which something of the appearance of a bird cage is imparted by filling in the interstices with iron gratings.

Jackson and his beloved wife Rachel are buried in a corner of the garden of the Hermitage, eleven miles from Nashville, on the Lebanon turnpike. The circuler area of Tennessee limestone, eighteen feet in diameter, approached by three steps; eight fluted columns support an entablature and dome, surmounted by an urn. In the centre of the area is a square supporting a pyramid. Jackson lies on the left, under a plain stone slab, his wife on the right. Magnolia trees encircle the grave, on which a small clump of hickories cast their shade. Van Buren's body rests in the centre of the Van Buren lot in the northeast corner of the cemetery at Kinderhook. Above it is a plain marble shaft fifteen feet high, bearing a simple inscription about half way up one side. Inscriptions on two other faces are in the memory of his wife and their son, Martin. The lot is unfenced, unbordered, unmarked by shrub or flower. Harrison's body in 1879 lay in a plain, brick vault on the summit of a hillock at North Bend, O., fifteen miles from Cincinnati. A thick undergrowth then covered the hillock, and the tomb was not marked by a single letter. It was understood that the body was to be removed to Spring Grove cemetery at Cincinnati. Tyler's grave is a turfed mound in Hollywood cemetery at Richmond, ten yards from that of Monroe. No stone marks it, though the State is ultimately to erect a monument above the spot, but a deodar and magnolia stand sentinel over it, and it is surrounded with flowers.

Polk's burial place is in the garden of the mansion he purchased on the eve of his death. The site is the corner of Vine and Union streets in the city of Nashville, and the tomb is near the gate—in the centre of a smooth grass spot round which runs a shell path of dazzling whiteness. The monument of limestone—Doric columns supporting the usual architrave, frieze, cornice and attic. The monument proper is a stone rising some five feet from the floor and bearing the record of Polk's public services. In 1879 Taylor's body was at Cave Hill cemetery, Louisville, awaiting removal to Frankfort, where a suitable monument was to be erected over it, close to that which marks the resting place of Richard Mentor Johnson. Fillmore's grave is in the peaceful and pretty Forest Lawn cemetery, three miles north of Buffalo, almost upon the crest of its central hill. A lofty shaft of polished Scotch granite rests on a pedestal of the same material, superimposed on a base of Lockport stone; its only ornament, a slight moulding running round the pedestal. It is inscribed with "Fillmore" in large raised letters. On the fence of the shaft are inscriptions in memory of the President and the different members of his family. The monument rises at the head of his grave; a great Norway spruce casts its shadow on the foot.

Pierce's grave is in the Minot inclosure adjoining the old Cemetery at Concord, N. H. Above it is a monument of pure Italian marble, a spire with cap, die an plinth, resting on a base of granite and surrounded by a draped cross. "Pierce" is carved on the plinth, and there is a brief inscription on the panel of the die. His wife and their two sons are buried near him. Buchanan's tomb is in the Woodward Hill cemetery, at Lancaster, Pa. It is enclosed by a fence of black iron with post of mottled granite, the iron bars being interlaced by a fragment hedge of roses. The grass within is velvety and dotted with rose bushes. The body rests in a vault of heavy masonry covered with large limestone flags. A base of New Hampshire granite supports a monument in the Roman style—a single block of Italian Marble, wrought with heavy moulded cap and base, carved with an oak branch studded with leaves and acorns and simply inscribed.

Lincoln's monument is a great pile of marble, granite and bronze, in Oak Ridge cemetery at Springfield Ill., with the inscription of which all American readers have been made familar with from time to time. The body of the martyred President lies in the catacomb in a leaden coffin, inclosed in a cedar case within a sarcophagus of rich white marble, having carved on one end the word "Lincoln." Johnson's grave is on the summit of a lofty cone-shaped eminence half a mile southwest of Greenville, Tenn. The monument is of marble on a base of granite. From piers on each side of the graves of Johnson and his wife springs a granite arch of thirteen stones; on this rests the monument proper, a plinth suitably inscribed, a die carved with the constitution (minus the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments) and an open Bible on which rests a hand as if in the act of taking an oath, and a tapering shaft of marble festooned at the top with the American flag and surmounted by an eagle with outstretched wings.

LITTLE roosters crow loudest.

Ute Eloquence.

Warriors and Countrymen: We are congregated to-day in our new corral. The paleface has rounded us up once more and led us one notch nearer the setting sun.

We are the courageous fragment of what was once the the mighty Ute nation. Now we are cut out and herded on a new reservation like a bunch of Texas steers for the Chicago market.

Warriors, I glory in your prowess, your valor, your wild, untamed thirst for gore and rest. I see before me the most ferocious band of beefsteak destroyers that the world has ever seen. I am proud of your record.

You were told by the white father at Washington to pack your shawl straps and move to the new ranch in the far west, so that Colorado white bean cultivators could have the graves of our ancestors to raise corky radishes and watermellons on. He told us that we might go to the new reservation and die of ennui if we chose, while the average Colorado granger dug up the bones of our people regardless of expense.

Then did you dig up the tomahawk and bury the pipe of peace?

Did you brandish your meat axe and plunge it into the liver of your pale face foe?

Not if my memory still continues to wag.

You did not paralyze the pale face. You didn't walk over him and tramp him into the dust very much. At least if you did the facts have not been correctly brought to my notice.

Instead of piling up a lot of ghastly fragments of busted Caucasians, you simply packed your night shirts and your tooth brushes and lit out for the new range.

I gaze upon you with singular pride. The chunk of swelling pride that is at this moment agitating my gizzard and striving for utterance is fully as big as a cook stove.

If I had a son 7 years old who hadn't more nerve and more sand than this feeble relic of the Ute nation has to-day, I would take him out behind the straw pile and brain him with a boiled rutabaga.

Do you call to mind the days when we used to go over into North park and surprise a party of prospectors and scoot them up the golden stairs before breakfast? Have you forgotten the time when we stole enough grub to keep house and then sold our rations to the pale face for the latest style of firearms? I don't think I have ever seen such a change. It breaks me up and saddens me.

We are settled here now 500 miles from anywhere and among total strangers. We are at least 300 miles from telegraphic and whisky facilities, and the midst of the Mormon church. Our squaws may have crude and at times erroneous notions about the social relations, and they may have been more or less extemporaneous and impromptu, as it were, in relation to the matter of marriage, still they have never fallen into the groveling customs of the oleaginous Mormon.

As I said before we have come here without a murmur. We just packed up the rosewood piano and the household collection of insects that had become attached to us, and moved like a lot of sore-eyed emigrants. I see about me warriors who might be powerful chiefs of a great nation, but instead of that you stand around here with your shirt tails sticking throught little rustic apertures in your overalls.

Children of the forest, your race is nearly run. You will scatter a few polished soup bones and bacon rinds over this reservation and then die. You will probably die of gout. If some good, able-bodied pilgrim would make a drainage tube out of a length of gas pipe and tap the whole tribe for laudable pus he would win my undying esteem.

I am done. You have heard me cackle. You have listened to my melodious toot. I will now dry up and simmer down.

A Sure Cure.

'Don't you know it's very wrong to smoke, my boy?' said an elderly looking lady, in a railway waiting room to Young America, who persisted in puffing a cheap cigar, much to the old lady's discomfort.

'Oh, I smoke for my health,' answered the boy, emitting a volume of smoke from his mouth, which almost strangled the old lady.

'But you never heard of a cure from smoking,' continued the lady when she had regained consciousness.

'Oh, yes I did,' persisted the boy, as he formed his mouth into a young Vesuvius working on full time; 'that's the way they cure pigs.'

'Smoke on, then,' quickly replied the old lady; 'there's some hope for you yet.'

The editor of a Virginia paper was asked by a stranger if it was possible that little town kept up four newspapers, and the reply was: 'No; It takes four newspapers to keep up the town.'

Dairy of a First Baby.

The first day or two after the birth of our child is more or less indistinct in our memory. It don't seem to be very definite or fixed, floating through our wild waste of brain there is a chaotic panorama, and there seems to nothing but a mixture of events. We see in our mind's eve an excited young man prancing wildly through the moonlight down town. The solemn hush of midnight seems to pervade everything. The young man seems to have dressed himself in a hurry, and one suspender is hanging down by his side. He rings a door bell and a physician comes to the door.

There is a hurried conversation and then all is still. Pretty soon two men pass up the street.

* * * * *

It is to-morrow. A beautiful parboiled child is nestling in a roll of snowy blanket. The father gets a magnifying glass and looks at the features.

The nurse tells the father that the child is the living picture of him, and the enraged parent brains the nurse with a decorated wash bowl.

First day—The child opens its mouth twice, emitting a falsetto wail that makes the cold chills go all over the adjoining block.

Second day—The child passed a comfortable night. More comfortable than the parents. The father goes down town at two o'clock p. m. for a soothing lotion for the child. Gets one for himself at the same time.

Third day—Respiration normal, pulse regular, amount of laudable howl materially increased.

Tenth day—The mind begins to develop, and the father notices that his child has no teeth, and will have to be fed on ground feed and bran mash for some time.

Fifteenth day—The child passed the night pawing the air and rehearsing a voluntary in G fifth line above.

Twentieth day—Signs of internal disturbance, with indications of squals and the pale blue colic.

Twenty-first day—Fell out of the bed without fatal results.

Thirtieth day—Began to notice the father, and manifested a desire to become more thoroughly acquainted.

Fortieth day—The dissipated flush caused by late hours and constant attention to vocal music began to disappear.

No noticeable change for several months, except the growth of the brain and partial disappearance of gastric rebellion.

The growth of the mental faculties seemed then to be more and more noticeable, so that the child at this date seems to know more than the old people. The mental expansion of the juvenile is something that is simply appalling.

Morganatic Marriages.

Morganatic marriages have for centuries been made by German princes. Neither the wife nor her children are entitled, usually, in a union of this kind, to share the rank or possessions of the husband, the dowry being considered a requittal for the loss of ordinary connubial rights and privileges. One of the most noted of such alliances was that of Frederick William III., of Prussia, with the Countess Auguste von Harrach, who, at the time of the wedding, was made princess of Llegnitz. Out of the usage has gradually arisen a code of matrimonial law by which the union of princes with members of the lower order in other than morganatic form has been attended with very serious consequences, mainly to the women. The lovely and unhappy Agnes Bernauer, whom Duke Albrecht, of Bavaria, had espoused, was savagely put to death, in the fifteenth century, during the absence of her lord, on a charge of having bewitched him. In the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries the German princes were in the habit of taking a morganatic wife in addition to a regular wife. Landgrave Philip, of Hesse, set the example, though not without the disapproval of the leading reformers. During the past century, Anton Ulrich, Duke of Saxe-Meiningen, tried hard to depart from the established rule in an effort to obtain for his morganatic wife the title of duchess, and for her children the right of succession. The emperor, sustained by the highest nobility of the realm, refused his suit, declaring that there could be no complete marriage in princely families except between persons of equal birth. Morganatic marriages have not decreased in Germany during the last sixty or seventy years. One of the most remarkable instances was the marriage of the daughter of the postmaster of Aussee (Styria), afterward created Countess of Meran, to the late Archduke John. These left-handed connections are recognized and tolerated among the higher aristocracy not less than among princely lines. In Prussia, even the inferior gentry may, and often do, contract them. The Roman and the Greek churches have virtually sanctioned morganatic marriages, which are palpably unjust to women, to true domesticity, and the best interests of morality.

Knew When to Quit.

Stock speculators know that the chances of their being ultimately ruined are as ten to one. But the possibility of making money by lucky ventures appeals to their gambling instinct, and so they go on speculating, with a determination to stop at the right time. But few ever find the right time unless it sounds loudly, as in the following case:

I think I may be excused for a little show of pride in saying that I know when to stop speculating and quit Wall street, he observed, as an elevated train carried them over that great thoroughfare.

So you used to speculate?

Yes, I was on the street for seven years.

Made your pile I suppose?

Yes, I made and lost money the same as the rest. At one time I could draw my check for $70,000 and that isn't bad for a man who went into Wall street with only $40 in his pocket.

And you knew when to quit?

Yes, sir.

That was when—when?

That was when I had enough left to pay my fare to Elmira and hire a boy to carry my satchel up to my father-in-law's house.

BE modest.

Explaining a Horserace.

Yesterday, says the Utica Observer, Swiggleton went to the races. Swiggleton is not a betting man, did not wager any money, and therefore didn't win or lose a cent. But he felt the excitement with the rest of the crowd, and when he returned home in the evening with his face flushed and his general manner betraying the effect upon him of the sensational episodes of the day, his wife noticed his changed demeanor. While he was eating supper his excitement entered into the performance of every little movement.

He held his knife and fork as Charley Green would grasp the ribbons; when he used his napkin he imagined himself rubber and applied the cloth vigorously to face and head as if he was sponging a prize trotter; once he forgot himself and shouted "Go!" with a vehemence that frightened the baby, and, again, when Mrs. Swiggleton was pouring out his second cup of tea he startled her by saying "Time!" quite sharply. After the meal Mrs. Swiggleton opened the ball by saying:

"Well, William, did you enjoy the races?"

'Didn't I, though!' answered Swiggleton, giving vent to his suppressed feelings: 'Oh, I can tell you they were glorious. You ought to see a horse-race once. You've no idea how exciting it is. Why, when Humboldt reached his last quarter, yesterday—'

'His last quarter!' interrupted the listening wife. 'Is that all the money he had?'

'No, no! Humboldt is a horse. I was going to say that when he came down to the homestretch on the first heat yesterday, it was the finest sight I ever saw. His Jockey—'

'My sakes! you don't mean to say that the horse wore a bonnet on his head?'

'Now, Mrs. Swiggleton, you've got to listen if you want to hear any more. The Jocky is the man who drives the horse—who holds the reins, you understand. You don't suppose the horses run around the track without drivers, do you? If you listen, I'll explain it to you. In the stand are the judges, who give the word for the drivers to start. Before this time they draw lots, and the horse that gets the lucky number takes the poles—I don't mean that he takes it in his mouth, but that he is assigned to the inside of the track. Understand? Now, the horse that gets the inside of the track sometimes stands better in the pools. I was going to say that the first thing of all, the horses appear upon the course with their rubbers—'

'Oh' yes, William; now I begin to see. They wear rubbers so that standing in the pools won't make their feet wet. Is that it?'

'Hang it all, woman, no! Where's your wits to-night? The rubbers are the attendants on the trotters! the pools are the bets the men make. I honestly believe the baby there sees through it better than you. You see the horses start some distance down the track in order that they may be nearly abreast when the wire is reached. The wire is something like a clothes' line, only 'taint rope. Of course you know all about it.' If the trotters are anywhere near even when they come under—not over—this wire, the judges give the word to go.

"If a horse breaks—I don't mean break in two—and gallops, instead of trotting, he is ruled out of the race. The horse who runs around the course fastest and finishes first wins the heat, and the best three heats out of five make the race. If two trotters come under the wire neck to neck the heat is dead. To-day for instance, Humboldt won the 2:30 race. Just before the race began he sold at $50——"

"Oh, William! Why didn't you offer $60 and buy him. Just think I've been wanting a horse so long."

"Keep on. That's right. A woman who can't understand any more than you don't deserve a five cent horse. Fifty dollars is what they were betting on Humboldt; you couldn't buy him for $5,000. Well, let it go. There is no use in trying to explain it to you. While I was down to the Park I saw Mattie Hunter. Aint she a beauty though! It was a perfect delight to see her step. She has the most graceful neck I ever saw and the nicest skin. I'd give a good deal to have her, I tell you. She'd be worth something to a man——"

"Why, Mr. Swiggleton, how you talk! You ought to be ashamed of yourself, speaking about any Miss Hunter in that fashion, when you're a married man already, with five children. I see; you want to make me jealous, that's all. Tell me, how was she dressed."

No wonder the neighbors thought the Swiggleton family were quarreling when that worthy proceeded to explain that Mattie Hunter was a trotter. He did it so loudly, you know, and with such original emphasis.

A little boy in Belfast, Me., attended church last Sunday for the first time. On returning home, he was asked what was done at the church, to which he replied: 'First they sang, then prayed, and then they passed around the corn-popper.'

The policeman had left his revolver at home, and he needed one to shoot the mad dog. In the emergency he exclaimed: 'Great heavens! is there a Texas man present?'

Farm and Iron Ore Mine
AT
ORPHANS COURT SALE

WILL be exposed at public sale on the premises, by order of the Orphans' Court of Centre county, Pa., on Wednesday, Nov. 16th, 1881,

All that messuage or tract of land known as the

JAS. A. McCALMONT FARM

Located in Marion township, Centre county, Pa., about a mile west of Jacksonville and eight miles east of Bellefonte, a first class Nittany Valley Farm, bounded by lands of W. W. Beck, Joseph Long, heirs of John Beatty, and heirs of Thomas Huston, deceased, containing about 193 acres, net measure. 150 acres are cleared and in a high state of cultivation, and the balance of the land is covered with thriving timber.

A good Mansion House, two tenement houses, frame barn, with other outbuildings; wells and cisterns convenient.

This farm contains the celebrated Iron Ore Bank known as the McCalmont Ore, which is of the best quality, analyzing 56 per cent. carbonate of iron, and extensive in quantity in addition to which there are indications of ore of same quality in the fields adjoining, which can be washed from the earth in large quantities. Water 99 feet below the surface.

This farm is located in a good neighborhood, convenient to churches, schools, mills, and within three miles of Howard station on the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad, to which the road descends all the way.

Persons wishing to view this property before the day of sale are invited to call on James S. and Robert McCalmont, who reside on the premises.

Sale at 1 o'clock P. M. of said day.

TERMS.—One-third of purchase money to be paid on confirmation of sale, one-third in one year, the balance in two years thereafter; the two latter payments to be secured by bonds and mortgage on the premises, with interest.

Valuable Farm for Sale.

THE EXECUTORS OF THE ESTATE OF FELIX DALE, deceased, offer at private sale a Farm situate at seven miles southwest from Bellefonte, containing 162 Acres, more or less, of the very best limestone land, about 30 acres of which remain covered with good timber, mostly of white oak.

The improvements are a two-story Dwelling House, roomy and commodious with cellar and vault, basement kitchen and pantry; well and cistern near the door; oven-house, smoke-house and tool-house; a large Bank Barn, with horse-power shed attached; carriage house, corn crib, and other necessary buildings.

Besides an Orchard of choice apples, there are cherries, peaches, grapes, and other fruits in their season.

Spring Creek runs through the place.

IRON ORE.

From surface indications and tests made, it is believed that a valuable deposit of the best iron ore underlies the western part of the farm, needing only to be developed to enrich the owner.

Pleasantly located, with a soil of great fertility, and possessing the advantages of town and country in its proximity to churches, schools, mills, stores and markets, this property will commend itself to any one who is either looking for a desirable and comfortable home or wanting to make a good investment of capital.

HOUSE AND LOT.

An adjoining half-acre lot with a house thereon, will be sold either with the farm, or separately, to suit purchasers.

For terms and particulars apply to

VARIOUS CAUSES—

Advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checked, and a new growth will be produced in all cases where the follicles are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its operation, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts. It contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil or color white cambric; yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous.

For sale by all dealers. 12-40-1y 2

If you cannot read this print distinctly by lamp or gaslight in the evening at a distance of 10 inches, your eyes are failing, no matter what your age, and your eyes need help. Your sight can be improved and preserved if properly corrected. It is a wrong idea that spectacles should be dispensed with as long as possible. If they assist the vision use them. There is no danger of seeing too well, so long as the print is not magnified; it should look natural size but plain.

It is known to all who have been compelled to resort to the use of Spectacles (notwithstanding they may be perfectly fitted to correct the optical defects), that for some cause, not until recently well defined, their use was attended with fatiguing, smarting, and otherwise disagreeable sensations. This is a universal fact of experience, and has been supposed to be entirely beyond remedy. This disagreeable sensation and disturbance of the eye is produced chiefly, perhaps we ought to say entirely, from the fact that ordinary lenses increase the sensation of heat (to which the eye, more than any other organ or part of the body, is sensitive), as also the actinic or chemical properties of the rays of light.

It is well known that these peculiarities of light are identified with certain colors of each ray; and the point of importance, or without using technicalities, is to construct lenses so that these properties of light shall be neutralized; this can be done by introducing a neutralizing tint into their manufacture, the difficulty of which, however, consists in the selection of a color which shall have this effect, and, at the same time, shall not otherwise impair the lenses for purposes of vision. The

Arundel Tinted Lens

Is designed to effect this purpose. The peculiarity of its manufacture consists in the introduction into the glass of a slight Violet Color, in such manner that the high and low numbers of the lens prepared from this glass, although varying in thickness, are of the same delicate tint and of sufficient power to neutralize the heating and actinic power of the rays of light. Read the following:

[From R. S. Mershon, Esq., Zanesville, Ohio.]

"I have put the Arundels through the following tests:—I placed an eight-inch Arundel, and an eight-inch white lens side by side, sharply focused in the strong sunlight, with their foci directed on the bulbs of two thermometers, and the difference was four (4°) degrees in temperture in favor of the ARUNDEL. Again, I placed the same lenses side by side on a piece of sensitised photographic paper, and the white glass discolored the surface quicker than the ARUNDEL. These two tests prove these two points, viz: that the ARUNDEL intercepts the solar heat-rays and the chemical rays also."

And the following from a Centre county man whose letter can be seen at my store:

* * * "I am very much pleased with the glasses. They have been more beneficial to my eyes than all the medicine I ever put in them."

If you experience any unpleasantness in reading or can't see distinctly, come in and have your eyes tested. I think I have something good for you.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

The Positive Cure
For all Female Complaints.

This preparation, as its name signifies, consists of Vegetable Properties that are harmless to the most delicate invalid. Upon one trial the merits of this Compound will be recognized, as relief is immediate; and when its use is continued, in ninety-nine cases in a hundred, a permanent cure is effected, as thousands will testify. On account of its proven merits, it is to-day recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country.

It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life. It will dissolve and expel tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development. The tendency to cancerous humors there is checked very speedily by its use.

In fact it has proved to be the greatest and best remedy that has ever been discovered. It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach.

It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

For Kidney Complaints of either sex this compound is unsurpassed.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is prepared at 233 and 235 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass. Price $1.00. Six bottles for $5.00. Sent by mail in the form of pills, also in the form of Lozenges, on receipt of price, $1.00, per box, for either. Mrs. PINKHAM freely answers all letters of inquiry. Send for pamphlet. Address as above Mention this paper.

FOR STATE TREASURER,

SILAS M. BAILY.

A man who from his youth up has fought the battles of Republicanism in a region where no hope of success could add vigor and zeal to the contest, and with no reward save the consciousness of having served the cause he loved.

A man who has attested his love of liberty and law by services on the field of glory and of blood, who won his promotion in the glorious Pennsylvania Reserves, from Captain to Brigadier, by meritorious service on the field.

A man who stood in the red hell of battle at Brainesville, on the Peninsula, at Gaines's Mill, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg and the Wilderness, and who bore witness with his blood that he loved his country well.

He bears upon his person the rough scars left by the cruel cannon ball, and will carry to his grave the evidence of his patriotism and courage.

He is able and worthy to lead Republicans to victory, as he led his regiment to war.—Speech of Attorney General Palmer in the Republican State Convention.

BELLEFONTE, PA., Oct. 7, '81.

We do hereby certify that we have carefully examined the accounts of John I. Rankin, as Chairman of the Republican Committee for the year 1880, and we find, upon said examination, that his actual cash payments, made on behalf of said committee, are in excess of the money he received as Chairman.

THE LATEST NEWS.

Guiteau Arraigned.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—There was a very large attendance this morning in the Criminal Court room, attracted partly by the impression that the arraignment of Guiteau would take place and partly by the announcement that the argument in the star route cases would be opened by Robt. G. Ingersoll. The latter said he was unwilling to go on unless the whole matter could be finished in a day or two, and Mr. Cook, for the Government, said he was not ready, owing to the absence of counsel. Finally the case was allowed to remain open for two weeks, the time for opening the argument to be fixed after that time. After the withdrawal of counsel in the star route case, it became known in the court room that the arraignment of Guiteau was actually going to take place, so most of the spectators remained, and a very intense feeling of curiosity and interest was manifested. There was no unusual display of the police force in or about the court room, although there was a large number of detectives present not in uniform.

THE ASSASSIN APPEARS.

At a quarter past 11 o'clock Mr. Scoville, counsel for the prisoner, entered and took a seat at the lawyers' table, and immediately afterward the door of the witness room opened and gave entrance to Marshal Henry and the two deputy marshals having between them and hustling along the bowed and cowering figure of the man for whom they made way to a seat reserved for him beside his counsel. Then one of the guards unlocked the handcuffs, giving the prisoner the use of his hands. Guiteau looked broken in health and uncared for in person. His dark clothes were rusty and shabby, and his whole person presented a miserably neglected appearance. After the excitement attending his entrance had subsided, District Attorney Corkhill rose, and, addressing the Judge, said: 'The grand jury of the District of Columbia has indicted Charles J. Guiteau for the murder of James A. Garfield. The prisoner is in court. I ask that he be arraigned and required to plead to the indictment."

THE ARRAIGNMENT.

The prisoner was ordered to stand up and in a languid manner obeyed. The Clerk: "Is your name Charles J. Guiteau?" The prisoner assented by a nod. The Clerk then proceeded to read the indictment, the prisoner standing up, with his head most of the time inclined to the right shoulder, his eyes half closed or wholly so, his hands crossed as if still they were handcuffed, and his general air was that of sickly indifference. The reading occupied nearly half an hour, and during all that time Guiteau hardly once changed his attitude or bearing and hardly opened his eyes. He did not manifest the slightest degree of interest in the scene in which he was the chief actor, and, but for an occasional slight movement, might be supposed to be asleep in a standing attitude.

Upon the conclusion of the reading of the indictment the Clerk, addressing the prisoner, said: 'What say you to this indictment, guilty or not guilty?" The prisoner, in place of response, fumbled in his waistcoat pocket and drew out a soiled and crumpled scrap of paper.

District Attorney (imperatively)—Enter your plea of "guilty or not guilty."

The prisoner—I enter plea "not guilty," if your honor please, and I desire to make a statement.

The Court—At some other time. It would not be appropriate just now. Sit down.

The prisoner thereupon took his seat.

The counsel for the prisoner asked for time to prepare his defense, and asked that the court would order the attendance of witnesses to be paid by the Government. He outlined the defense to be 1st, insanity 2nd, the President died from malpractice, and 3rd, the court had no jurisdiction.

After some remarks by the District Attorney and the Court, the trial was fixed for the 7th of November, and the preliminary arguments on the question of jurisdiction for the 31st of October, or thereabouts.

This closed the proceedings for the day. The marshal and his assistants replaced the handcuffs on Guiteau, who manifested throughout the same listless indifference which he had shown when the indictment was being read to him. He was hurried out of court in the same way he had been brought in, and was put into the hack in waiting and driven back to jail in the immediate custody of the marshal and assistants.

The New Haven Mystery.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 14.—The Malley trial opened yesterday morning with a statement by Lawyer Fox, who said that he proposed to prove that Joseph Marvin, the baseball man, was present when Jennie Cramer's body was found on the shore, and that he then and there stated before the witness Cannon, whose testimony was sought to be introduced yesterday, that he knew the body to be that of an Irish girl who lived down town in New Haven, and that he had seen her on the flying horses the night before. Furthermore the defence could show that Marvin, when subsequently asked why he had not held to his first statemrnt, as to who the girl was, but instead said it was Jennie Cramer, and that he had seen her the night before, replied that he had done so "to make a stake."

Justice Booth said that he would admit that Marvin had made other statements about the body on the beach.

James C. Tuttle, of Fair Haven, testified in support of the claim of the defence that Jennie Cramer was dead and on the harbor bottom before Friday night. His testimony was had on Friday afternoon. August 5, he took a party out sailing, and just after he pushed out from the shore end of Kelsey's wharf he saw something white in the water on the bottom, which the day suggested to his mind might have been Jennie Cramer's body; he went to the place subsequently and the white object was gone. On being cross-examined the witness said that he recollected that a large picture had been floating about the place and had frightened some of th bathers; no one offered to pick up the white object seen, and the witness told his party that he thought it was a skatefish.

William H. Attmore, a bathhouse tender, testified that at four o'clock on Saturday morning, August the 6, he saw something white in one of the gullies in the sand, about one hundred yards from shore; after the body was found he looked again, but could not see that any other white object had come ashore.

George T. Doolittle corroborated Tuttle and said that when he saw the white object from Tuttle's boat it appeared to be floating, and it was about the size of a medium sized woman. On cross-examination he said that he saw it twenty feet distant and took it to be paper.

James Haffey, another of Edward Malley's employees, testified to contradict the defense's witness, Bohan, Malley's coachman, who testified that Walter Malley had the two-seated carriage out all Wednesday night, August 3, and until next morning, and that this was the only time he had this carriage. According to Haffey this was Thursday night, July 28; he had been discharged by Mr. Malley, and hired again as coachman.

James Bohan was recalled, but did not make his testimony connect with Haffey's. He said that he was convinced that he was mistaken, and that he meant to testify that Walter Malley had the two-seated carriage on Tuesday, August 2.

Tears in Jurors' Eyes.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—It is expected that the case of Robert Martin, who is on trial in Newark for murdering his wife and baby, will be given to the jury to day. His counsel has tried to show, by witnesses, that the prisoner was suffering from mental aberration when he did the shooting. Yesterday afternoon Martin was called to the stand. He is an intelligent Englishman of plain appearance. He said he spent several years in Cuba, making considerable money as a merchant. In 1878 he removed to Newark. He said he had drank a great deal, but stopped last December. He was sick two weeks before the shooting, and for four days he neither ate nor slept. For four days after getting out he drank. Then came Wednesday, June the 15. On that day he drank beer and gin. In the evening he went into his house and saw his boy. It was not true that he quarrelled with his wife, for he did not see her. He went up stairs and began to undress for bed While putting pennies in his baby's money bank in the closet he heard his wife in the hall. Taking his revolver out of the open chest he pointed it around the door and said, "See here!" It went off, and he knew nothing more.

At this point Martin began crying. "I don't know anything more that happened," he exclaimed, as he burried his face in his hands, weeping convulsively. Several jurors brushed tears from their eyes.

The President and Cabinet.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—It is stated to-night that owing to the unsettled state of affairs in the Senate President Arthur will not to-morrow send in the names of his new Cabinet officers as he had determined earlier in the week to do. This change in his programme is due to several reasons. In the first place, a reorganization of the Senate will probably take place and he desires that body to be fully organized before submitting these appointments for confirmation. In the second place, owing to the arrangements which the members of the present Cabinet had made to accompany the President to Yorktown, it is his wish that their intentions in this respect be carried out, and they will all accordingly leave here with him next week. Then, too, several complications have arisen which make a little more time desirable. For these reasons it is not probable that any changes will occur until after the Yorktown celebration. A rumor reached Washington to-night that Levi P. Morton had left Paris for this country to accept the Secretaryship of the Treasury in the new Cabinet. A near friend of the President says that he has about twenty names under consideration for Cabinet positions, all being those of Stalwart Republicans.

Soldiers' Monument to Garfield.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15.—In accordance with a resolution adopted by the Society of the Army of the Cumberland at Chattanooga, September 21st, Lieutenant General Sherman, President of the society, has appointed the following named members of the society a committee to take measures for the erection of a mounment to General Garfield by the society: General James Barnett, Cleveland (Chairman); General J. C. Smith, Chicago, General A. G. McCook, New York, Colonel H. C. Corbin, Washington, General W. A. Robinson, Pittsburgh, General A. B. Underwood, Boston, Lieutenant John Ruhm, Nashville, General Henry M. Cist, Cincinnati, and General A. G. Parkhurst, Detroit.

Our National Guests.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The French and German national guests, accompained by the ministers and members of legation of their respective countries, visited the State Department today and were presented to Secretary Blaine and other members of the Cabinet. Returning to the Arlington House they were escorted to the Capitol, where a formal reception took place by the district malitia, union veterans, fire department and several civic societies. The route of procession was thronged with people. There was a liberal display of flags and much waving of handkerchiefs.

In sending out invitations to foreign representatives to attend the Yorktown Centennial Secretary Blaine omitted the British legation from motives of delecacy. He thought that as the event was in celebration of the defeat of British troops probably the British Embassy might feel aggrieved at being invited to witness it. To-day the Secretary was reliably informed that the members of the British Legation would be pleased at the opportunity to visit Yorktown and witness the celebration. The Secretary immediately extended an informal but cordial invitation to the legation to accompany him to Yorktown as his guests, on his boat, and at the same time he explained why an invitation had not been sent before. The invitation was readily accepted, and the legation assured the Secretary that Great Britain has no feeling of disappointment or jealousy at the success of the American colonies in the war for their independence; that the British Embassy, representing the sentiment of cordial friendship their country and people entertain for the United States, will take pleasure in participating in the Yorktown ceremonies.

Silver Mines Discovered.

FORT KEOGH, M. T. Oct. 14.—New and valuable silver mines have been discovered on the head of Clark's Fork, a tributary of the Yellowstone River. The mines are located near the National Park and are on the Crow Indian reservation. Silver was found on Clark's Fort as early as 1868 by three prospectors, but they were driven off by the Indians. In 1872 a party of miners returned to locate, but were attacked by the Arapahoes and driven away. The next year they returned again and were attacked, and twenty of them killed. No further attempt to work the mines was made until 1877, and work in them had just commenced when the Nez Perces, under Joseph, came along and broke up the camp. It is now occupied for the sixth time, and twenty-seven claims have been located. The ore yields from $500 to $1,000 and even $2,000 per ton. The district is very extensive and the quantity of ore inexhaustible. An officer who has been over the ground says he believes there is more silver on Clark's Fork than in the whole of Nevada. The mines are located in a sterile region, difficult of access, being at an elevation of perhaps ten thousand feet above the sea level and surrounded by mountains.

Suicide as an Occupation.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Henry Kessler, age twenty-seven, a native of Switzerland, shot himself in the mouth, yesterday morning, on the door-step of the liquor store at No. 97 Cherry-st., kept by his brother-in-law, Charles Olsson. He was a worthless fellow who had deserted his wife for a woman of bad character, and through drink had thrice failed in business and had been repeatedly discharged from the position as bar-keeper in his brother's and brother-in-law's liquor stores. He had often threatened to shoot himself, and had, his sister said, been prevented eight times by her from carrying out his threat. Recently, when he again craved help and was refused, he said that his sister should soon sweep up his blood from her own door-step. He died while the policemen were carrying him to the Oak street station. On a leaf of his pocket-book were written the following words: 'Hard, hard times! Jack said so.' 'Jack' is a brother of the dead man, who keeps a liquor store at No. 67 East Houston-st.

Preparations at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Admiral Porter will leave here on the United States steamship Dispatch to-morrow for Yorktown, to arrange for the naval portion of the programme in the forthcoming celebration. He will return on Saturday or Sunday, as the Dispatch will probably be used to convey to Yorktown the President and members of the Cabinet, who will go down on Tuesday next.

A committee selected by the Secretary of State will visit Baltimore to-morrow, and escort the French guests to this city, where they will remain until Monday. On that day they will embark for Yorktown on the steamer City of Peekskill, chartered for their use by the State Department, and will visit Mount Vernon on the way down the river.

Parnel Under Arrest.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Parnell, the Irish agitator, was arrested this morning by order of the government, under the coercoin act. The news of his arrest almost stirred up a revolution in Ireland.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

—House robbers are carrying on an extensive business in Lock Haven, and we notice by the Altoona and Huntingdon papers that they also are terribly annoyed by them. Keep your doors locked and the windows securely fastened.

—Paper coffins are coming into fashion. Fashion regulates everything, and after a while, we suppose, when a man dies all they'll do will be to wrap him in an old newspaper and chuck him into a hole. How would you feel to wake up on resurrection morning with not a stitch of clothing on and only a piece of paper covering your nakedness. We kick against fashion running everything its own way.

—State Superintendent Higbee has issued a circular calling a convention of all superintendents of public schools in the counties west of the Alleghenies to meet in Pittsburgh on the 10th of January next, to continue in session three days. A convention of superintendents in counties east of the Alleghenies is called to meet in Reading on the 17th day of January. It is the design of the State Superintendent to gather such information from papers read before the Convention as to enable the making of the proper codification of the school laws of the State.

—One of the largest audiences that ever filled the Opera House assembled there on Tuesday evening to greet the Duprez & Benedict minstrel party. Every reserved seat in the building had been taken early in the day, and many who paid for a good seat were compelled to sit in the rear or stand in the aisle. To say that the entertainment was by far the best of the kind that ever visited Bellefonte would not overreach the bounds a particle, and from first to last the audience was kept in the very best of spirits. We do not feel called upon to particularize, but suffice it to say that if they ever again visit our town we will either have to enlarge the Opera House or have them give an out-door entertainment.

Dancing and its Effects.

This is what the Journal of Education says about dancing and its consequent effects: A great deal can be said about dancing; for instance, the chief of police of New York city says that three-fourths of the abandoned girls there were ruined by dancing. Young ladies allow gentlemen privileges in dancing, which taken under any other circumstances, would be considered as improper. It requires neither brains nor good morals to be a good dancer. As the love of one increases the love of the other decreases. How many of the best men and women are skillful dancers? In ancient times the sexes danced separately. Alcohol is the spirit of beverages. So sex is the spirit of the dance; take it away and let the sexes dance separately and dancing would go out of fashion very soon. Parlor dancing is dangerous. Tippling leads to drunkenness and parlor dancing leads to ungodly balls. Tippling and parlor dancing sow to the wind and both reap the whirlwind. Put dancing in the crucible, apply the acids, weigh it, and the verdict of reason, mortality and religion is, "Weighed in the balance and found wanting."

—All correspondents from the National Capital are unanimous in the opinion that the social life of that city during this winter will be marked by an entire absence of gayety. Mourning for the death of the late Chief Executive will be continued for a period of six months. But whether the inhabitants of Washington city chose to be gay or not, it is certain that the people of Centre county will find it impossible to restrain a certain exuberance of feeling over the fact that the far-famed grocery store of Sechler & Co. will continue to sell all kinds of fresh groceries cheaper than ever before. Persons should give this store a trial before purchasing elsewhere.

A Mysterious Event.

A somewhat mysterious circumstance took place in Bellefonte yesterday. One of the fairest maidens of Centre Hall paid a visit to this place. On her arm she carried a basket. She passed along our principal business thoroughfares with a haughty step and a disdainful eye. It was apparent by the flash of her beautiful orbs that she was bound on a mission of great importance which she was determined to accomplish or expire in the attempt. The gay, attractive signs which span the streets on either side failed to attract her attention. She did not pause to admire any of the store windows on Allegheny street, but turning down High street she swiftly hastened toward the railroad depot. But she stopped ere she reached that spot and stepping into the grocery store of Sechler & Co., she purchased from the fine stock of groceries until her basket was full. Then for the first time she gave vent to her feelings in the exclamation: "There I told Jerusha Ann that when I was married we would have a feast worthy of a king, and now, that I have groceries from Sechler's store that will be easily accomplished." Happy maiden; thrice happy are all who follow her example.

The Amusement Season in Bellefonte.

Amusement season in Bellefonte is just opening, and the indications are we will have a number of the very finest troupes in the country visit us before the season closes. Among those already mentioned is one that promised to visit us last year, but owing to some disagreement failed to reach here. This is the Helen Potter Pleiades troupe, one of the very best dramatic organizations in the land, and which numbers some of the very brightest theatrical stars. The press notices received by this troupe are most flattering wherever they go, and not without sufficient reason. They will appear in Bellefonte on the evening of the 28th instant, being Friday of next week, and our citizens will then have an opportunity of seeing a first-class, high-toned play, such as is not frequently to be found outside of a large city.

Among those billed for Bellefonte we fined Howorth's Hibernica, which has already visited this town, and the excellent reputation it has established assures its success on this occasion. Hayers' sisters, a dramatic troupe of colored people, will also appear here some time in the early part of the season. This is also said to be a fine combination of theatrical talent, and highly eulogized by the press and public wherever they appear.

Canfield & Lamont's European Pantomime and Novelty Company is booked for an engagement here November 9. This troupe was here last season, and gave general satisfaction. Baird's minstrel party is traveling this way and will most likely take in Bellefonte on their way.

We think Bellefonte will be well supplied this season with first-class attractions, something we have not enjoyed to an overly great extent for several years, and it is due to the active efforts of Mr. John Sourbeck, who manages Bellefonte's amusements, that this reform is taking place. The several troupes so far announced are all of a superior character, and we have good reason to believed that they will be well received by our citizens.

Extraordinary Opportunity for the Relief of the Afflicted.

Dr. Hartman, the well known Oculist, Aurist and Orthopedic Surgeon, will visit Bellefonte, Pa., and stop at the Bush House for one week from Oct. 26th to the eve. of Oct. 31st. He will have with him a complete outfit of Surgical appliances and apparatus, &c., and will be fully prepared to treat all cases of Paralysis, Deformities of the head, body and limbs, Diseased Joints, Clubbed Feet, Diseased Eyes, Cataract, Piles, Fistula, Stammering, Chronic Diseases, &c. No cases will be undertaken without a fair hope of relief. In consequence of the great expense of such a trip he will not make another; therefore, all who wish to avail themselves of his great skill and experience without visiting his Pittsburgh Office, must do so at this time.

SUMMARY OF THE NEWS.

Senate Extra Session.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.— The opening of the special session of the Senate was witnessed by a large number of persons, who, as early as 11 o'clock, filled the galleries to their utmost capacity. The desk formerly occupied by Senator Burnside was tastefully draped with black, while several bouquets ornamented the desks of prominent Senators. The Senators elect, Aldrich, Lapham and Miller, occupied seats upon the floor on the Republican side.

It had been agreed by a caucus of both parties that Senator Harris should call the Senate to order, which he did.

The following communication had been received from the President:

To the Senate of the United States: I transmit herewith a copy of the proclamation for the convening in extraordinary session of the Senate of the United States, at the Capitol in the city of Washington, on the 10th day of October, instant, at noon.

[Signed] CHESTER A. ARTHUR.

[Here followed the proclamation published September 23.]

ELECTING A PRESIDENT PRO TEM.

The President's proclamation having been read, Mr. Pendleton moved the adoption of the following resolution:

"That Thomas F. Bayard, a Senator from the State of Delaware, is hereby chosen President pro tem of the Senate."

After some discussion and several amendments being voted down the original motion was carried and Bayard was elected by a vote of 34 to 32. Senator Davis did not vote and Mahone voted with the Republicans.

On taking the chair Mr. Bayard spoke as follows: Senators—I fully appreciate the honor put upon me by this expression of your confidence; and in assuming the duties of President pro tempore of the Senate in obedience to law and in accordance with the rules of the body, and the vote of the majority, I should have greater misgivings in fulfilling acceptably the requirements of the post were it not for the assurance that so long as I shall continue in the exercise of its duties I shall receive your co-operation and friendly aid, which I now earnestly and confidently invoke at your hands. We are all painfully mindful of the unusual circumstances under which we meet, and of the national bereavement which has caused this special session of the Senate. May it not be hoped that, touched by a sense of the common sorrow and chastened by the grief that penetrates every household in our great family of States, our proceedings may be marked by a spirit of concession and harmony and generous consideration for mutual differences of opinion, and softening of partisan asperities and high intent to perform our duties in a manner responsive to the demands of the occasion and the best interests of our common country? With such hopes and in such spirit I now assume, and shall endeavor to perform the duties of the high position to which your favor has assigned me.

ANOTHER CAUCUS.

Immediately after the adjournment of the Senate the Democratic members held a caucus lasting until after 5 P. M. The question of admitting the three new Senators, after considerable discussion, was disposed of temporarily by the appointment of a committee to examine their credentials as well as to consider the protest of the Democratic Senators of the New York Legislature against the admission of Lapham and Miller. The committee Senators Garland, Jones and McPherson, will report to the caucus to-morrow morning, when a decision will probably be made whether the New York Senators will be sworn in at once or their credentials be referred to a committee of the Senate for investigation. The caucus also, after several ballots, nominated S. Q. Washington as a candidate for the Secretaryship. No decision was reached on the subject of electing a Secretary to-morrow.

DAVID DAVIS' POSITION.

The action of Senator Davis, of Illinois, in deciding to vote with the Republicans, is the topic of much discussion. His vote would give the Republicans a majority after the three Senators-elect shall have been sworn in, and the Republican Senators have said they were in favor of using their advantage to elect a President as soon as their Senators are admitted. A Democratic Senator, who is on excellent terms with Senator Davis, says the latter told him he believed the Republicans are entitled to the Presidency of the Senate because they carried the election last year, and especially as this official might become President of the United States; that so believing he would vote to elect a Republican, but that if Bayard or any other Democrat is elected and installed he (Davis) will accept that as final, and will not vote to turn the President out and elect a Republican.

Defiant Democrats.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The Democratic Senators declare that the object of the extra session having been accomplished in the election of a President pro tem. and the swearing in of the Senators from New York and Rhode Island, they will combat and attempt on the part of the Republicans to elect a President pro tem. of their own. They propose to persist in their revolutionary proceedings in violation of the will of the people. The Republicans are not inclined to press the issue at this time. The course of Senator Davis of Illinois, is still a puzzle, but the Republicans are generally confident that he will co-operate in the interests of law and order. It was proposed by several Republicans to-day to take up Davis as the Republican candidate. They claim that he would at least preserve the status quo as far as the organization was concerned until a new election could be held, whilst Bayard being a Southern man would fill all the offices from the South and satisfy the North with a few of minor importance. However much inclined he might be to take a conservative course, the action of the party mangers in the Senate would be too much for him.

The Republican Senators have called a caucus for to-morrow, to determine whether to insist on the election of a President pro tem. at the present session of the Senate or to delay until December. Should they determine to proceed at once the Democrats openly threaten they will filibuster if it consumes all of next session.

Senators-elect take their Seats.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Immediately after the reading of the journal Mr. Edmunds, rising to a question of the highest privilege, moved the oath of office be administered to Nelson W. Aldrich, Senator-elect from Rhode Island. There being no objection, the motion was agreed to and Mr. Aldrich sworn in. Mr. Edmunds then made a similar motion in the case of the Senators-elect from New York.

After some discussion this was agreed to, and Tappan and Miller were sworn in. The committee appointed to wait upon the President reported it had performed its duty, and that the President had stated he would communicate in writing with the Senate to-morrow. Adjourned.

Effect of the Election.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The Democratic Senators after their usurpation of the rights of the people in the election of Bayard were considerably demoralized to-day over the results of the election in Ohio. Senator Pendleton had been counting on some positive Democratic gain. The effect of the election has also encouraged a sentiment among the Republican Senators in favor of making an immediate attempt to dispossess Senator Bayard of his position as President pro tem. The Pennsylvania Senators are decidedly in favor of this course. Senator Mitchell says that the voice of Ohio is a sufficient guarantee of the opinion of the people upon an act of the Democrats in preventing the great State of New York and Rhode Island from participating in the election of the presiding officer over the body to which they were accredited.

Guiteau's Trial.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Mr. Scoville, brother-in-law and council for Guiteau, was in court this morning, and stated that he had no notice or information as to when the arrangement of Guiteau would take place; that he had not yet received any answer from General Butler as to whether he would act as counsel for the defence; that the statement, already published, as to Merrick expressing his willingness to argue the question of jurisdiction, if raised is correct; that he had been advised by distinguish lawyers all over the country (including several judges) to raise every question and make every point that can properly be made on behalf of his client; that such is also the express instruction of Guiteau; and that he (Scoville) has no apprehension of personal violence being offered the prisoner on his way to or from or in court. It is stated that the District Judge also expressed a desire that all legitimate and proper questions in the case shall be raised and fairly argued.

The New York Democracy.

ALBANY, Oct. 13.—The convention was called to order at 10:25 A. M., and the Committee on Contested Seats reported excluding the Tammany and Irving Hall delegation and admitting the New York County Democracy representation. The reports were adopted. Hon. Erastus Brooks was unanimously chosen Permanent Chairman and made an address.

The committee on resolutions presented a report, which was adopted. The resolutions renew fidelity to the principles set forth by the New York State Conventions of 1874, '75 and '76, and by the National Convention at St. Louis; denounce the assassination of the late President of the United States as a crime against authority, against free institutions and against humanity; demand the refunding of the national debt at the lowest possible rate of interest; declare in favor of gold and silver as the legal tender of the constitution, and adhere to the doctrine that all paper mediums of money must be based on those metals as the standard values of the world; demand the payment, principal and interests, of every dollar of indebtedness, regarding 'readjustment' as repudiation; call upon Democrats in Congress to maintain their standard of retrenchment and to make a thorough and immediate investigation into the star route and other frauds upon the Federal treasury; indorse the action of the Democrats at the recent sessions of the State Legislature and deplore the disgrace and dishonor brought upon the State by the factional struggle of Republican placemen; and recommend the early submission to the people of an amendment to the State constitution in favor of free canals.

Mr. Brooks, in his address, deplored the death of President Garfield by the hand of an assassin, expressed sympathy with the family, and recognition of the general sorrow of the civilized nations. Referring to the Presidential election of 1876, he said it becomes the Democratic voters of this State neither to forget nor to forgive an offense which politically disfranchises two States of our Union, and thousands of American citizens, in order to make a man President who had received neither a constitutional vote nor an honest election. Mr. Brooks spoke in advocacy of honest elections, honest officials, honest money, free ships and traiff for revenue, affording a liberal support of the Government and ample protection to every great interest. He denounced the creed of corporations and monopolists.

The following ticket was nominated: For Secretary of State, Wm. Purcell; for Comptroller, Geo. H. Lapham; for Attorney General Rowell C. Parmenter; for Treasurer, Robert A. Maxwell; for State Engineer, Thomas Overshed; for Judge of Court of Appeals, ex-Attorney General Schoonmaker. After the usual vote of thanks the convention adjourned sine die.

At 9 P. M. there are not in the city over twenty members of the Democratic Convention. They hastened away by rail and boat as soon as they could after adjournment. Of the few remaining some complain at the treatment of Tammany. Others again say the time had arrived for summary action, and that the county Democracy will take the place of Tammany. No fault is found with the ticket, and gartification is expressed at the orderly character of the convention.

The Iowa Election.

DESMOINES, Oct. 12.—It has rained here all day and the reports are that the rain has been general all over the State. The indications are now that not over two-thirds vote has been cast. A hard thunder storm is now prevailing, and it is probable that this will prevent the getting of election returns rapidly, especially as in this State none of the ballots are counted until the polls are closed. The total poll of Iowa last year was 321,000. Partial reports from nine counties indicate that there will be a falling off this year of probably 60,000. In this city only 3,262 votes were polled, a falling off of over 800 since last year. The tickets are badly scratched and it took nearly all night to count them.

The Republican majority over the Democrats will be fifty thousand, and over all parties thirty-three thousand.

LADY BEAUTIFIERS.—Ladies you can not make fair skin, rosy cheeks, and sparkling eyes with all the cosmetics of France, or beautifiers of the world, while in poor health and nothing will give you such rich blood, good health, strength and beauty as Hop Bitters. A trial is certain proof.

Result in Iowa.

DES MOINES, Oct. 13.—Reports from thirty-eight counties give Sherman, Republican, for governor 5,879 majority over Kinne, Democrat. Last year the same counties gave Garfield 8,581 majority. The same relative vote over the State will give Sherman a majority of between 50,000 and 55,000 over the Democrats and a majority of 35,000 over all The reports indicate a majority of 90 in the Legislature. The Senate will be more strongly Republican than in 1879, as there is a gain of one in Dubuque and one in Lee and possibly one in Keokuk. There have been fewer Republican losses on account of the Prohibitory amendment than were epxected, and some of the Prohibition losses on the Republican side in Cass county run pretty close to other causes than that.

Up to this hour the State Register has full returns from 68 of 99 counties of the State, which give Sherman, Republican, for Governor, over the Democratic, a net majority of 34,500. Partial returns from the remaining counties indicate his total majority will be between 48,000 and 50,000. The Democrats concede 40,000 majority. The Register's returns on the Legislature give the Republicans 44 of 50 Senators and 78 of 100 Representatives.

The city of Des Moines, complete and official, gives a Republican majority of 1,063. The whole Republican county ticket is elected. Every ward and precinct in the city of Des Moines and every township in the county of Polk went Republican for the first time in the history of the city and county.

Ohio's Election.

The Buckeye State comes to the front with a result of which the Republicans have a right to be proud. Notwithstanding that this was the most quite canvass known in Ohio for years, and that by a reckless expenditure of money the Democrats expected to secure their usual "off-year" success, the Republicans show up with a majority of about 15,000, which, considering the falling off in the total vote, is a signal victory. The returns from Hamilton county still leave some doubt as to the exact complexion of the legislature, but with such a result on the general ticket, the probabilities are decidedly in favor of Republican supremacy in that body. If Cincinnati sends a Democratic delegation, the legislature will be very close; but if that city elects Republican legislators, the majority in that body will be a safe one to work on. This is good enough for one day in an off year.

What the Returns Show.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 12.—Returns from 383 precincts out of 1,240 in the State show a net Democratic gain of 510 as compared with the vote for Townsend, Secretary of State, when he was elected last year by 19,000 majority. At the same rate of Democratic gain Forster is elected by about 15,000 majority. The control of the Legislature hangs on Hamilton. The Republican majority for Townsend in that county was 2,000. She sends 16 members of the Legislature. The returns from there are mixed, and owing to the vast amount of scratching it is not probable that it will be known till morning who has carried the county, or what proportion of the nominees are elected on the Republican ticket. Cuyahoga county sends eight members, all Republicans, by between three and four thousand majority.

The Legislature Republicans.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 13.—Returns since noon have been meagre and very little has been learned of the result. Governor Foster believes that his majority will reach 20,000. It is believed that Jennison Hall, Republican, is elected Senator from the Miami-Darke district, which will give a Republican majority in the Senate.

Chairman Nash, of the State Republican Committee, says the Republicans have fifty eight members of the House and sixteen members of the Senate without Hamilton county, and two Senators in doubt. Seventeen is a majority in the Senate. The Republicans have the House.

Returns to-night indicate the election of twenty Republicans and thirteen Democratic Senators. Two of the districts included above are still in doubt one being claimed by the Republicans and the other conceded to the Democrats. It is thought that the Republicans will have from thirty to forty-five majority in the House. Should the official figures verify the above the Republicans will have larger majorities in both branches of the General Assembly than they had in the last body.

Origin of the Gypsies.

The latter researches of Potts, Miclosich and others leave no doubt as to the Indian origin of the gypsies although the exact tribe from which they sprung has not been as yet definitely ascertained. Many of the individual words, such as pani, water, are identical in Gypsy and Hindustani; but the grammar of the first mentioned language, as shown in the mutilated form which remains in English Rommany and the more perfect system of the Turkish Tchingianes is quite different from most of the modern vernaculars of India, and has but few points of contact with the older dialects. There are in India several tribes whose characteristic habits are very similar to those of the gypsies of England. The Jats, Naths and Brinjaris, for example, singularly resemble them; and a very good case has been made out in favor of the first mentioned as the original gypsy stem. It is a historical fact that somewhere about the year 420 A. D. a number of strolling minstrels did find their way into Persia. They were called Luri, and are described by Firdousi in terms which might equally well apply to a band of English Rommanies. The word Luri is still used in Persia for strolling minstrels and vagabonds; while under the form Nuri, it is the generic appellation of gypsies in Syria and Egypt. Arab historians speak of these people under the alternative name of Zutt, which is with much reason, believed to be a corruption of Jat. The gypsies call themselves everywhere 'Rom' or 'Rommany,' which would point to the 'Dom' or 'Rom' tribe as their original stock, the initial letter of the word being equivalent to their D. or R. These people, who are principally found in Behar, are essentially a roving tribe. Among other things which distinguish them from other Hindu casts is their indifference to ceremonial impurity, such as that which arises from touching a dead body, and their liking for swine flesh. Now, gypsies in Europe are very peculiar in their eating, and are, perhaps, the only race which will eat animals that have died a natural dead. Mullo baulo, or 'dead pig,' is their favorite delicacy; and one of the most typical and most amusing of the Rommany ballads which Borrow has collected celebrates the trick formerly so common with them of poisoning a pig in order the next day to beg its carcass for food

The Dead President and his Mother.

C. H. Leonard, M. D., who was a classmate of the late President at college, writes to the Detroit News:

There is another subject closely connected with his early history on which much is now said, but few know the real depth of the meaning of that inaugural kiss which he imprinted on the withered brow of his dear old mother. It meant more than the mass of people understand it to mean—a mere token, perhaps heartfelt for the moment, of filial affection. To James A. Garfield it meant much more than this. In it he remembered the many sacrifices the mother had made for him in earlier years—yes, verily the systematic starvation she underwent—that he and his brother Thomas and his two sisters might have their meals of plain corn bread, or mush, three times a day.

The Garfield family were poor, very poor (the President did not have a pair of shoes till he was four years old); the mother's hand was the one that split the rails to fence the log-house out from the utter wilderness, and so stay a little the depredations of the wolves; it was her hands too that got the wood to keep them warm that first long and dreary winter, and when the little sack of cornmeal was gradually getting low, the widow, the mother, as we know her now, saw that, before spring, this would fail unless a saving could be made somewhere. She could not stint the children, so she began to sacrifice herself, eating but two meals a day of her frugal fare in order that James and the others might not suffer hunger; finally she saw that this would not do, that still further sacrifice must be made, and who but she must make it? With the heroism that Garfield himself seems to have inherited from her, she, the little frail woman, resolved to do with only one meal a day, and give her share of the other two meals to her hungry children, in order that they might not know the pangs that lack of food would bring. This she did heroically for several weeks, and this is what Garfield remembered when he gave his mother that kiss on that day when he was at the acme of his career.

Hospitality.

The habit that obtains in many families of 'heaping food,' and giving a little and considerable more than is asked for, has nothing to be said in its favor, and a great deal against it. Unless one has strong, firm appetite, that only an earth quake or a tempest could effect, a large quantity of food is appalling. It is much pleasanter to send one's plate to have it replenished, than to be obliged to leave food upon the plate. In order to clear the plate one is prone to overeat, from the idea of 'saving' the food. Economy does not signify a lack of plentifulness, or stinginess. It means enough for each and all, and nothing is wasted; and when food is served in overabundance, waste must be the result, unless indeed, the surplus is gathered together again—the simple idea of which is disgusting. Moreover, it is a comfort to get just what one asks for—if 'half a cup of tea,' that much and no more.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

"THE CHILDREN'S GARFIELD HOME."—A new project in memory of the late President originates in the suggestion of a little boy, Willie P. Herrick, for founding a "Garfield Home" for poor and sick children by subscriptions from the children of America. Willie writes to the New York Evening Post as follows:

I felt very badly when our President died and my brother and I think it would be very nice to have a house in the country for little sick children. Mamma thought that each little boy or girl could give from one cent up to twenty-five cents. We thought we could call it the "Garfield Home," and we also thought it would be very nice to have a picture of President Garfield in it. We would like all little boys and girls to join in this. Please put this in the paper, and also put in for the parents to tell the children. WILLIE P. HERRICK.

NEWPORT, September 27, 1881.

To this letter, inclosing a dollar as the contribution of four children, Willie's mother adds:

"The children were intensely interested and affected. Their earnest, childlike prayers and faith touched our hearts, and we have heard the same story from other parents. Great good might be accomplished by turning this tide of children's sympathy and love to practical use."

The Post having declined to act as banker of the fund, the St. Nicholas Magazine for Young Folks announces that it will reprint Willie's suggestion in its November number, believing that its young readers will be glad to learn of the project, and to give it practical aid; and the publishers of St. Nicholas have volunteered to receive and credit all subscriptions to the "Garfield Home" that may be sent them, with the understanding that if the total amount subscribed should prove insufficient for the founding of a Home, it may be applied in the form of a "Children's Garfield Fund" to the benefit of the Poor Children's Summer Home, or some kindred charity of New York City. Any persons interested may address or send moneys to THE CENTURY CO., Union Square (north), N. Y.

WITH the next number, the title of Scribner's Monthly becomes The Century Magazine. The first issue of The Century Magazine will have the general appearance of the old Scribner, but the page will be larger and without "rules," so that about fourteen pages of matter is added by the new arrangement. The publishers intend to emphasize the new series by a number (for November) of peculiar pictorial beauty and literary interest. One of the principal features of this number is the portrait of George Eliot, by Burton, which Mrs. Cross's family put forth through The Century Magazine as the authorized likeness of the great novelist. The portrait is accompanied by an account—also authorized—of her religious and philosophic beliefs, by Frederick W. H. Myers.

THE CENTURY CO. (incorporated 1870) Union Square, N. Y.

AN irreverent humorist, embittered by long manufacture of jokes and the fiendish pursuit of puns once impelled a baleful joke upon his wife at the close of a wash day, she then preparing the frugal evening meal, whereupon she smote him over his broad brow with a stew pan. Falling lifeless upon the floor, the dying man cried out as he fell, with a gleam of immortal triumph in his eyes, 'Stewpandous joke!' and passed away to a brighter land.

CLARA BELL tells the Cincinnati Enquirer about delicate hosiery that shrinks every time it is washed, and she knows 'a pair of beautiful light-blue stockings that have descended, washing by washing, from the biggest of five sisters to the smallest, being transferred to fit each shrinkage.' That settles it. The woman is Eli Perkins beyond a doubt.

'PAT,' said a traveler, 'why did you make the stone wall around your shanty so thick?' 'Why please your honor, I hear they have high winds in Amerikey, so I thought if I built it about as thick as it was high, if it should blow over, it would be just as high as it was afore, yer honor.'

'I dont so much mind,' said Mr. Henpeck, 'I dont so much mind a woman having a mind of her own, except that in such a case she usually takes charge of her husband's also.'

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms of moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching, very distressing, particularly at night, as if pin worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected; if allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "Dr Swayne's All-Healing Ointment" is a pleasant sure cure. Also the Tetter, Itch, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers' Itch, Blotches, all Scaly, Crusty, Cutaneous Eruptions. Price 50 cents. 3 boxes for $1.25. Sent by mail to any address on receipt of price in currency, or three cent postage stamps. Prepared only by Dr. Swayne & Son, 330 North Sixth Street, Philadelphia, Pa., to whom letters should be addressed. Sold by all prominent druggists. 12-7-1y

—Take no quack nostrums. Put your trust in PERUNA.

—I paid $150 to my doctor and was no better. I then took a few bottles of PERUNA which cured me.

—Have you seen the new style Wooden Curb for Chain Pumps? and by the way are you aware that the chain pumps are being daily substituted for the other pumps in use. Wilson, McFarlane & Co. are making a specialty of these pumps. If you want pure, cold water don't fail to get a Chain Pump.

—PERUNA is a sure cure for biliousness and kidney complaints; it has no equal.

—Special inducements for orders for Clothing during the summer months.

12-50tf MONTGOMERY & Co., Tailors.

—The retail price of Logan Cement on and after this date will be two dollars per barrel and no charge for bags or barrels. H. K. Hicks.

Local Small Talk.

—Local freight carried off another large batch of new cars on Wednesday.

—Bellefonte will not be very largely represented at the Yorktown celebration this week.

—It is said that the chestnut crop will be very short this fall, which is bad news for the boys.

—Work at Duncan & Hale's mill was suspended again on Wednesday morning, owing to the breaking of one of the large water wheels.

—Wolfe clubs are being organized pretty much all over the State, but they seem to number nearly as many Democrats as Republicans.

—Local news is scarcer now than ever before in our experience, and we shall thank our friends if they will send in any items they may pick up.

—Mr. Henderson Stanton and Miss Mary Foster, both of Buffalo Run, were united in marriage on the 5th instant by 'Squire Robert H. Stein, at his office in that p'ace.

—An exchange would like to know the cause of worms being in the backs of black bass. We don't know, indeed, unless they were fly-blown during the drouth last summer.

—The rain on Wednesday was very drenching and brightened up things wonderfully, but it whould have been much more appreciated had it arrived about four weeks sooner.

—We wonder if "Kicker" Wolf intends to talk to the Bellefonte people and tell them why "this is thus." We should like to hear him, not because we admire him, but just for a change.

—Street Commissioner Shaughensy, with a gang of men, was busily engaged on Thursday in improving east Bishop street, near the Catholic cemetery, by filling up with broken stone and earth, something that has long been needed.

—Bellefonte now supports four pool rooms, a billiard saloon, bowling alley, half a dozen drinking places, and a lock-up, with several prospective candidates for the State prison. Where is there a town in the State of its size that can beat it?

—At the recent session of the Supreme Court in Pittsburg, twenty-two out of thirty nine decisions were reversed, among which were one by each Judge Mayer and Judge Orvis, of this district, although we failed to learn in what cases they were.

—Gotlieb Haag, Pleasant Gap's popular hosteler, has completed his grist mill and on Thursday started the machinery in motion, and was gratified to find that everything worked like a charm. The work was performed by Messrs. Gordon & Landis, of this place.

—We have neglected to announce that our different churches have changed the hour for evening service from half-past seven to seven o'clock, and church-goers will please bear this fact in mind so that they needn't go straggling in half an hour after services have begun.

—Company C, of Hollidaysburg, has finally been fixed upon to represent the 5th Regiment at Yorktown. We suppose this settles the matter, and company B "boys" may get down to business now and they may probably be selected to represent the Regiment at the next Yorktown centennial.

—The newspapers are warning farmers against a pair of men who are traveling around collecting a tax on a patent gate that is much used by farmers generally. We advise the farmers of Centre county to keep "one eye wide open" for these chaps, and when they call make it warm for them.

—That man who investeth his money in rum in the morning reposeth in the city cooler in the evening, and no man pitieth his lamentable condition. And the next day when he has a head on him like a hogshead he feels that it would be a satisfaction to go out and be kicked to death by a jackass.

—We were misinformed recently in regard to the shooting of Mr. Adam Weight. It was Frank Sagar who did the shooting, and not Frederick Fetzer, as we erroneously stated. The weapon was a revolver. The ball lodged in Mr. Weight's neck, and has not yet been removed. It is not regarded as a dangerous wound, although it is very painful.

—A new comet, and the sixth one for the present year, was discovered October 4. It is located in the constellation of Leo, right ascension nine hours and 22 minutes, declination north 16 degrees, wherever that is. This business of hunting comets has become disgustingly monotonous, and we have about concluded to sell out and start a gold mine, and raise government bonds. It is pleasanter work and more profitable, too.

Drunkenness and its Curses.

A few years ago the system of slavery was supported by our government. We knew it to be wrong, yet we encouraged its perpetuity. Four millions of human backs bowed to involuntary burdens, while as many human souls sent deep groans of unutterable woe up to high heaven for redress of their wrongs. It was unreasonable for us to suppose God would indulge this nation in wrongs so cruel and so inhuman. The sacred rights of marriage were all denied to the colored man, and the wife of his bosom was torn from his breast and driven like a beast before an unfeeling master. Their helpless little children were dragged to the auction block and bartered as chattles to the merchant of a distant land, where they never again could enjoy the comforts and love of a happy home. Ministers prayed for God's blessing upon the land of the free, but it was unreasonable to think a just God could bless and prosper this nation, so steeped in human misery. As the echoes of civil war thundred, the wrath of an offended God and the blood of four hundred thousand loyal men washed out the stains of a nation's crime and made the bondsmen free.

The slave is free. No longer is the clanking of the chains heard in the land. But the long train of evils concomitant upon two hundred years of crime still mar and annoy our country's peace, and will till the generations to come shall make good the wrongs of the past. The slave system was a burning shame, and cast odium upon all who sustained it in this land. But how much greater are the wrongs done by the liquor traffic? It robs the wife of her husband, and casts him into that eternal gloom whence no ray of light ever returns to make glad the broken heart. It takes from her breast the little child and sends it in squallor and want into the streets a beggar for its daily bread. No home, no school, no church, no God. Its life in the streets; its death in the ditch; its future the torments of hell. Such is the work of traffic in rum. Such is the fruit of the ballot cast with a party that licenses the traffic in rum.

Is it not unreasonable, then, to think that the country is safe under the administration of such a party? Two hundred thousand children are robbed of homes and made helpless paupers and thrown upon the charity of the world every year by the traffic in liquors. The country is robbed of their usefulness, the church of their support, and heaven of their souls. Is it reasonable to suppose that God will not hold us responsible for this terrible wrong? One hundred thousand persons die annually and fill the grave of the drunkard. Heaven has recorded that none such ever enter its pearly gates. The doom of the drunkard is eternal woe. We license this traffic and produce this wrong and then pray to Almighty God for peace and prosperity to our homes and our country. Can there be anything more unreasonable? Ministers of the Gospel are the duly authorized exponents of Divine truth. They bear the commission from Almighty God to teach to man the true idea of a Deity as revealed to them by the grace of God through nature and revelation. Upon their faithfulness in the performance of this trust depends the application of those eternal principles of truth and justice on which the best happiness of all mankind must forever depend. They demand and receive the attention and obedience of all those who profess the name of Christ, for they are the criterions of His will. To you, then, ministers of Christ, we look for a remedy. Will you become reasonable and take the field for Jesus against this foe? Christianity is the only living force that claims the power over this evil. Will you do it? will you cease voting in opposition to your prayers? The ballot box is you pulpit of example, the rostrum of your profession. The heathen world looks for your answer, and upon that answer depends the extension of Christ's Kingdom. THOMAS I. TAYLOR.

Shooting Contest Between Companies B and H.

Thursday, the 20 inst., seems to have been the time definitely fixed upon for the rifle-shooting contest between representatives of company H, of Johnstown, and Company B, of Bellefonte. Five members of each company, which of course will include the "crack" shots each, will be selected, and both parties will be under command of their respective Captains—Captain Carswell of Company H, and Captain Mullen of Company B. The shooting will be done on the regular target grounds near Coleville, on the farm of Mr. William Humes, and the indications are it will be interesting and attract a large crowd. The range will be one and two hundred yards. Company B has not yet selected its representatives, but Lieutenant Hale informs us that they will do so in a few days.

About Editors.

Every editor loves to have his friends, and particularly his readers, call on him. They belong to the same family, as it were. But when you call to see the editor don't stay to long. Editors are generally very busy in business hours. If you have any suggestion to make, or news to communicate, state it in as few words as possible. Don't offer any excuse or indulge in a long preface to what you have to say. Blurt it right out; tell the editor you wish him well, and bid him good-day. Editors dote on such men as that; they love to receive calls from them. Don't argue with him; don't try to do it; he has no time for argument while at his work.

When you write to an editor for publication, make it short—boil it down. Pitch right into the middle of your subject, and be sure to stop when you are through. Editors always like something fresh and original in the way of communications, and are especially fond of news. But the editor must always be the judge of what is worthy of publication. Of course, every writer thinks his own production the best, just as every mother thinks her baby the prettiest that ever was born. But the editor may be so stupid as to have a different opinion. If so, it can't be helped. Don't try to urge him out of his notion. If he is too stupid to appreciate a good thing, you can't expect to remedy his dullness. You may think you are a good deal smarter than the editor, and that may be true, but the editor may be responsible and you are not. There is no class of men so anxious to please a majority of the people as editors are. There is no class of people so covetous of the good opinion of others. It is well to remember that fact.

College Boys on a "Cruise."

A party of students, numbering twenty, the graduating class of Pennsylvania College at Gettysburg, arrived in town on the late train Tuesday night and registered at the Bush House. They were accompanied by Prof. E. S. Breidenbaugk, who exercised a sort of parental influence and care over the party. They are on a tour of pleasure and inspection, and will take in a great part of the State before they return to headquarters. Early in the morning, although a drenching rain storm prevailed at the time, they chartered a couple hacks and made a flying visit to several places of interest about town, and judging from the way they hallooed and carried on when they returned, seemed to enjoy the trip regardless of the circumstances. They left on express east for Williamsport, from whence they go to Watkins' Glenn and a number of other places in the North. Following are their names, as taken from the Bush House register: Prof. E. S. Breidenbaugk, C. W. Bringham, M. H. Buchler, H. L. Stahler, F. E. Calvin, C. S. Duncan, C. L. T. Fisher, H. M. Trease, G. W. Gotwold, J. F. Herman, W. A. McLean, J. L. Metzger, L. P. Scherer, W. C. Sheely, J. C. Shindel, A. R. Steck, I. H. Stryker, C. R. Trowbridge, M. H. Valentine, G. W. Walter, H. H. Weber.

The Jacksonville Sunday-School Convention.

The preparatory efforts of the people of Jacksonville for the entertainment of delegates and the general welfare of the convention contributed largely to its success, and the consequent rich spiritual feast all enjoyed. The addresses on this occasion were most excellent, especially so those delivered by Revs. Hewitt, Furst and DeLong, of Bellefonte. Quite an interesting feature of the convention was the exhibition of models of the Jewish Tabernacle, its furniture, etc., with interesting expositions of their meanings, as "shadows of the good things" now realized under the Gospel dispensation. The Scriptural recitations, with other exercises at the scholars' hour, were most excellently conducted and deeply interesting. The services of a large choir present at every session afforded most enjoyable music. Altogether they had a very agreeable and it is hoped equally profitable convention.

Accidentally Shot.

Adam Weight, an employe of Valentines & Co., was accidentally shot on Tuesday morning, the 11th instant, by a man named Frederick Fetzer, while the latter was shooting at a mark with his shot gun. A shot entered Weight's neck, doing little damage but badly frightening him. He was taken to the office of Dr. Dorworth and the wound attended to. This is another instance of carelessness in the handling of fire arms, and although it might have easily been more serious both parties can thank their stars that it was not. There ought to be a law against this promiscuous firing of guns by any and everybody and in any place, strictly enforced, and we do believe it would save more lives and give people a feeling of safety.

Shooting in a School-Room.

Two boys, Woods Neff and Warner Jolly, students in the Grammar school at Osceola, took with them to the school room on Wednesday morning their pistols. Neff, while handling his weapon under the desk and out of the teacher's sight, accidentally discharged it, the ball lodging in the thigh of his companion in such a manner as to cause a dangerous and painful wound. Dr. Ulrick was called, but up to the time when our correspondent wrote had failed to extract the ball. It is feared that one of his limbs will have to be amputated, but the attending surgeons are doing all they possibly can to prevent this. The shooting was purely accidental, and not much is said about it. Half the pupils in the room were scared nearly out of their wits, and the teacher had great difficulty in restraining himself. The full extent of Jolly's injury is not known yet, but it is not thought the wound is necessarily fatal.

Marriage of a Bellefonte Lady in California.

The friends of Miss Mollie Nesbitt, late a teacher in our public schools, will be surprised to hear of her sudden transformation to the matrimonial state, which event took place on Saturday, the 1st inst., in San Francisco, Cal., whither she had gone a few weeks ago. The name of the fortunate husband is Henry A. Albert, and he resides at Requa, Del Norte county, California. All their friends in the east wish Mr. and Mrs. Albert all the prosperity they can possibly attain in their far-off western home, and that their journey together through life may be a most pleasant and happy one.

Reunion at Altoona.

A reunion of the officers and men of the 84th Pennsylvania Volunteers will be held at Altoona, Pa., on the 20th instant, being Thursday of this week. The survivors of the 110th are cordially invited to meet with the Regiment. Is is greatly desired that "all the boys" who are yet alive shall be present. Responces have been received from many of them already and earnest efforts are being made to reach all. Captain Robert Johnson, at Altoona, or Captain Merchant, 625 Walnut Street, Philadelphia can furnish further particulars as to programme and excursion rates.

—Jonas Zindle, a resident of Lock Haven and proprietor of the Farmer's Hotel in that place, met his death on Saturday of last week in that city, supposed to be at the hands of one Samual Blair. Both man were somewhat under the influence of liquor, and it is supposed that Blair pushed Zindle out onto the hard pavement, thereby fracturing his skull and otherwise injuring him so badly that he died before he could be carried back into his house. Blair was arrested and is now in jail. Both men had been on intimate terms socially, and no reason can be ascribed for Blair's action.

—The Banner says a Williamsport belle, intelligent, good-looking and rich, advertises for a beau, with a view to matrimony, who doesn't chew tobacco. If she doesn't bang 'er hair, wear hoops or powder we'll talk to her ourselves. This is the kind of wife we want, although we are not overly particular about the intelligence and good looks. Winter is coming on apace, and we are most thunderin' tired of work, and a woman with money would just suit. Please answer by return of mail.

P. S.—Does she use false teeth?

—In the ejectment case of Edward J. Pruner and others against the Houtz heirs, tried several years since in the courts of Centre county and carried to the Supreme Court, has finally been disposed of, Judge Sterret sustaining the ruling of the lower court. This case involved the title and ownership of two tracts of valuable coal land in Clearfield county, and its reversal would have unsettled the titles to all the lots in the borough of Houtzdale.

—Williamsport Banner: General James A. Beaver, of Bellefonte, William V. Emery, of this city, and Mr. Samaul Auchenbaugh, superintendent of the nail works at Crescent, have formed a copartnership, and will commence at once the erection of nail and iron works at Bellefonte. Mr. Emory leaves in company with his partners for Buffalo, N. Y., to-day, for the purpose of purchasing the necessary machinery.

—A two-year old daughter of David Glenn, Esq., of Howard street, was buried on Wednesday. She died on the previous Sunday, from causes which we have not learned.

—The Bush House bowling alley has a big run just now, owing probably to its novelty. A billiard room and shooting gallery will shortly be added to it.

—J. A. Reeber, Esq., of Williamsport, has been appointed receiver of the defunct Lycoming Insurance Company, of Muncy.

DIRECTIONS. For Catarrh, Hay Fever, Cold in the head, &c., insert with little finger a particle of the Balm into the nostrils; draw strong breaths thro' the nose. It will be absorbed, cleansing, and healing the diseased membrane.

FOR DEAFNESS, apply a particle into the ear

ELY'S CREAM BALM

Having gained an enviable local reputation, displacing all other preparations in the vicinity of discovery, is, on its merits alone, recognized as a wonderful remedy wherever known. A fair trial will convince the most skeptical of its curative powers. It effectually cleanses the nasal passages of Catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions, allays inflammation and irritation, protects the membranal linings of the head from additional colds, completely heals the sores and restores the senses of taste and smell. Beneficial results are realized after a few applications. A thorough treatment as directed will cure Catarrh. As a household remedy for cold in the head it is unequaled. The Balm is easy to use and agreeable. Sold by druggists at 50 cents. On receipt of 50 cents will mail a package. Send for circular with full information.

Bellefonte Republican.

EDWARD T. TUTEN, - - Editor.

Terms, $2.00 per annum in Advance

Local Department.

—There is danger of ice cream signs being frost bitten.

—Bellefonte ought to be able to support a first class literary society.

—Log jobbers are preparing for heavy operations in the woods this winter.

—Berwind, White & Co. will shortly put a number of green Italians to work about their mines at Snow Shoe.

—Bellefonte has about two hundred juvenile base ball clubs, and they all practice daily on our streets.

—Children now amuse themselves gathering the beautiful variegated leaves fast falling from the shade trees.

—Apple paring parties will soon be in order, and then the young folks will have another opportunity for enjoyment.

—Work on the new bank building is steadily progressing. The foundations have been completed, and work on the superstructure begun.

—Mr. William Kaise is the new miller at Ard's mill, Pine Grove, and seems to be giving very good satisfaction to the people of that vicinity

—Everything about the water house is topsy turvy, owing to the tearing out of the old boiler. The new one has not yet arrived, but it is expected daily.

—The gentlemen who are to start the new nail works are in town, and we suppose things will now assume a business-like appearance about the premises of the old Bellefonte iron company.

—Mr. John C. Shultz, one of Potter township's successful farmers, has just housed eleven acres of as fine tobacco as has ever been raised in the county, and which has been greatly admired by visitors to that place.

—A number of Democrats of Wilkesbarre have organized a Wolf club. They say that if Democratic papers can give Wolf such a good record he must be a better man than Noble, and hence they will support him.

—The firm of J. Powers & Son, Bellfeonte's popular shoemakers, Saturday received a post-office order from R. B. Kenny, Yokima, Washington Territory, for three pair of boots. This is the strongest kind of evidence of the popularity of these gentlemen's work, which never fails to give satisfaction.

—Mr. E. S. Barber, of Indiana county, this State, an extensive cattle drover, passed through Centre county last week from Mifflinburg, Union county, where he disposed of one hundred head of fine western cattle. Mr. Barber will soon visit Centre county with another supply, and then our farmers will have an opportunity of securing some excellent stock.

—Mr. Adam Waite, the accidental shooting of whom we have already announced, is resting easy at his home near the glass works. Although his neck is still very much swollen and he is unable to swallow much, the doctors are very hopeful of his speedy recovery, and unless some unseen complication arises think he will be able in a short time to be about again.

—Social circles about Pine Grove were somewhat excited last week caused by the marriage of Mr. Adam Murphy and Miss Mattie, daughter of Dr. James Smith, Sr., of that village. This happy event took place on Thursday last, at the home of the bride, and was attended by many friends of both parties. They left the same day for a tour through the east, followed by the good wishes of their many friends.

—It now appears that Company C, of Hollidaysburg, was not selected to represent the Fifth Regiment at Yorktown on account of merit. Colonel Burchfield says he would have preferred detailing the company in the Regiment showing the best monthly report, but on account of the shortness of time now intervening that was impossible. So the members of Company B may find some consolation in this.

—The Philipsburg Journal remarks that an octogenarian has observed that when the leaves fall early in the season a long and cold winter is indicated. Well, we don't know about the long and cold winter, but in our experience we have observed that when the leaves drop in October fall begins one month earlier than when they drop in November. Or you may change it about and have the leaves drop in November and the result will be just the opposite. This much we have learned from careful observation, and we're not an octogenarian, either.

MEMORIAL SERVICES.

Gregg Post's Services at the Court House Saturday Night.

The memorial services in the Court House Saturday night in memory of Comrade Captain K. Randolph Breese, whose death occurred at Newport, R. I., several weeks since, was largely attended by veterans and citizens, and the occasion was one of solemnity and sadness. At seven o'clock the Court House bell was tolled, and quarter of an hour later Gregg Post, fifty strong, filed into the large auditorum and occupied seats within the bar, Col. D. S. Keller acting as commander. There was no ostentation whatever connected with the proceedings, and everything was conducted solemnly and aweinspiring. Before the rostrum in the centre of the room was a beautiful anchor made of geraniums and spruce, intertwined with ivy, and the vacant chair, deeply draped, occupied a conspicuous position.

Promptly at half-past seven the choir, composed of Dr. Harris, Mr. John Lyon, Mrs. Edward Blanchard, Miss Lyon and Miss Orbinson, sang the beautiful chant, "Come to me." Commander Keller then called the Post to order and requested the military record of the late Comrade Breese to be read. This was done by Adjutant Benner, and pronounced an honorable record, and ordered to be placed in the archieves of the Post for future reference. The ceremony was indeed most beautiful and touching.

The choir next sang the hymn, "Friend after friend departs." This was followed by the relating of the Lord's prayer in unison by the Post, after which the choir sang a lovely chant, "Beyond the smiling and the weeping." Chaplain James H. Rankin next read the 90th Psalm, after which the choir sang, "God moves in a mysterious way."

The address for the occasion was delivered by Comrade John B. Linn, which was most eloquent and grand, paying a just and honorable tribute to the memory of the comrade to whose life they were gathered to pay homage. We regret extremely that we connot give this most able address in full, but our contracted space utterly forbids it. Suffice it to say that the address was most touching and showed the excellent ability of the orator. He closely reviewed the life of Captain Breese, and also his paternal ancestor. The address was most grand, and was decidedly appreciated by the audience. The choir then sang the Doxology and the ceremony of the Grand Army completed, after which the audience was dismissed.

An Atrocious Outrage.

The citizens of Kylertown, in Clearfield county, just across the Centre county line, were startled on Tuesday night last by the announcement of a high-handed and most atrocious outrage committed against Mr. Lewis Yocum and his family, who reside near that village. It seems that seven brawny, over-grown villains made their appearance at his house at an early hour in the evening and made a murderous assault upon Mr. Yocum and his wife, and also upon Senator Peale, who chanced that way at the time. A correspondent who learned the particulars writes as follows concerning the affair:

As Mr. Yocum was at his barn attending to the wants of his stock, seven ruffians made their appearance at the house, five of them forcing an entrance while the other two remained on the outside. On Mr. Yocum's return from the barn he was waylaid and knocked down with a club, although making a stout resistance, he was overpowered and robbed of seventeen dollars, which he had in his pockets. His injuries are serious he having a gash on his head, a cut on his hand and a finger almost severed. The five men who were in the house rifled it and attempted an assault upon Mrs. Yocum. She was dragged down the road and the clothing torn from her body. Her injuries are such as to confine her to bed. The robbers then left with their booty. They met Senator Peale a few rods off on horse-back. He was commanded to surrender what money he had, and was then allowed to depart unmolested. The villians then put off into the country. The nature of the crime is such as to arouse the indignation of the surrounding country, and the citizens threaten vengence if the robbers are captured. The authorities are using every possible effort to ferret out the villians, and we hope to chronicle their capture.

—We notice that Mr. Gum Hop Lee, the Chinaman who rented a room in McAfferty's block for the purpose of starting a laundry and then took a walk and forgot to come back, was arrested in Pittsburg the other day for absconding with some goods left in his charge at Altoona. He compromised the matter by restoring the articles and paying the costs.

Voters, Attention!

Election day is drawing near, and it now behooves you to study the character of the various candidates asking your support, so that you may be able to cast your ballots wisely and intelligently. The Republican party has put, on the whole, an excelient ticket in the field—one that will stand close scrutiny, and the voter, to whatever party he belongs, will act unwisely if he fails to study the character of those whom he supports. We might write volumes on the duty of voters to themselves and their country, but not a line is, or we should say ought to be necessary to remind them of this fact beyond a mere notice calling attention to the matter. Although several months have elapsed since the meeting of the party conventions, in which the voters have had ample time and opportunity to attend to the matter, we feel as though we ourselves would be forgetful of a duty should we fail to remind them of this important matter, and urge them to the work.

In this connction we will ask the voters of Centre county to support the candidate whom the Republican party has placed on its ticket for County Recorder, Edward L. Gray, a young man of ability and excellent character. Although young in years, Mr. Gray has always been an active and zealous worker in the Republican ranks, and whenever or wherever duty to his party called him, he always responded promptly and faithfully.

It is being urged by the friends of Mr. Gray's opponent, Mr. Bible, that their candidate is a cripple and needs the office, and on these grounds voters should support him. We ask our readers if this alone should influence them? Mr. Bible is a school teacher by profession, and at which he is capable of making a good living, and he has no reason whatever to attempt the making of capital from the deformity which nature gave him. Mr. Gray is neither a robust nor overly-healthy man, and upon these grounds could probably lay quite as much stress. But neither he nor his friends have done it; nor will they. They leave the issue in the hands of the honest voters of the county to choose the one whose ability warrants and their reason recommends. We now leave the matter with the people, with the request that the Republicans of the county see to it that Mr. Gray's opponents take no undue advantage of him on these grounds, at least while the demands of a poor constitution forbid him engaging personally in the contest.

Fire at Milesburg.

At about two o'clock on Friday morning fire was discovered eminating from the building used by C. K. Essington, Jr., at Milesburg, as an axe factory. The alarm was immediately sounded, and soon the whole village was awakened and its people rushing pell-mell to the scene of the conflagration. The building was located along the creek, in the rear of the large brick mill of Messrs. Green Brothers, and the bucket brigade lost no time in exercising its powers, but the building was constructed of light, dry timber and the fire had gained such headway that their efforts were unavailing in saving the structure. The building was entirely consumed, but a great deal of of the machinery inside was removed by those present and thus saved from destruction. The building belonged to the heirs of the late Joseph Green, and we understand was uninsured. Mr. Essington's loss was several hundred dollars, but he was fully insured. The building will be rebuilt as soon possible and work resumed. A dozen men have thus been thrown temporarily out of employment.

—Mrs. Harrison Kline, who was injured several days since by being thrown from a buggy in which she and her husband were returning home from Bellefonte, a notice of which appeared in these columns at the time, is, we are pleased to state, slowly recovering from the effects of the shock. For a time it was feared her injuries would prove fatal, but they have since taken a favorable turn, and she is expected to be about again in a short time.

—Bellefonters ought to shed tears of regret. In nearly all the adjoining towns Uncle Tom's Cabin is being played almost nightly, and yet we haven't seen it for a little more than three weeks. The very thought seems to anger us. Why doesn't some troupe come this way?

—How strange that circumstances so greatly alter matters. When candidates apply for appointments and get them they are called "honors," but when they don't get them they are called "spoils." Strange don't it.

—A new railroad will shortly be built near Bellefonte, and of which we will have more to tell our readers in a few days.

Chin Music in October.

Bellefonte is said to be the boss town for so-called agents. The agents themselves say it takes not only the "cake" but the confectionery and the bakery to boot. Even if the agents had not said it the fact would be apparent in the daily presence in the town of not only companies but regiments of the gentry. They represent all sorts and all conditions of trade, and bear within their own sweet persons wide and varied samples of all the physical styles that humanity ever was or ever will be heir to. Once in awhile the close observer may discover an agent given to a quiet turn of mind, but as a rule quiet-minded agents are rare, very rare. The agent who doesn't let the community know that he is around is either out of his mind or sick. Despite their lowness, however, they are in the main good fellows, and generally as jolly as sea dogs in a stiff gale. Even the tombstone man is a merry one, albeit his business of taking orders for graveyard adornments is a moderately ghastly affair. Likewise the Bible agent is not the serious, pious sort of chap his calling indicates. Life is a nut full of meat to the agent, whether he peddles Bibles or hawks gravestones. Witness, for example, the rather demonstrative matinee offered at the Bush House on Wednesday by representatives of these two branches of trade. Both felt moderately mellow when for the first time they met, as mentioned in the Bush House office, and each, as if by common impulse, began to canvass the other as soon as the way was cleared. The way the tombstone man talked tombstones to the Bible man and tried to sell him one, after the most approved method, could be equalled only by the magnificent force and redundant rhetoric that surged from the Bible man as he sought to convince the other chap that he was the chief of sinners and must surely be lost unless he subscribed for a Bible. They hacked away at each other wildly, earnestly and vociferously for half an hour or more, and vastly entertained a listening company of appreciative souls who impartially applauded as one or the other of the contestants made a telling hit and vowed meanwhile there hadn't been so much fun in town for months. The general verdict was that the scene was rich while it lasted, and although neither man sold any goods, each consoled himself with the thought that he had given his customer a red hot canvass, which they do say is consoling to the soul of the agent even when he misses his man.

Company B for Yorktown.

A portion of Company B, of Bellefonte has been selected as recruits for Company C, of Hollidaysburg, during their attendance at the Yorktown celebration. The recruiting party is composed of the following: Sergeants Geissinger and Schroeder, Corporals Miller and Wetzel, Privates Barrett, Bartroff, Philips, Cambridge, Morrison and Dare. The squad will be under charge of Lieutenant Hale until they are assigned to duty by Captain Stewart. They left on the early train Monday morning for Philadelphia, where they reported on Broad street Tuesday morning at 7:30 o'clock to Colonel Guthrie, of the 18th Regiment, who will command the Pennsylvania troops on this occasion. They will take a steamer at Philadelphia and proceed by water to Yorktown. They will be away from home about a week, and the probability is the boys will have a fine time during their visit to the spot where the last link in the chain of American independence was welded a century ago by the scalping of "Gorntvallust" and his British troops by the Yankee boys and their foreign allies quicker 'n lightnin,' so to speak, as it were.

The Crops in Pennsvalley.

Although we have heard a great deal about the great drought of last summer so severely damaging crops of every kind, which indeed it did too severely in many localities, yet to visit some of the farms in Pennsvalley one would suppose that they didn't know over there what drought meant. Crops of all kinds, with probably the exception of potatoes were fully up to the average, and corn is excellent. On the farm of Major William F. Reynolds, in Potter township, near Centre Hall, occupied by James Durst, the corn is of a vastly superior quality and very abundant, the ears being well filled and some measuring from fourteen to sixteen inches in length. The wheat crop was equally good, and altogether we think the farmers of that region have reason to thank the Almighty for special favors in bringing their crops to successful maturity.

—Messrs. W. B. Miles & Son, of Milesburg, have purchased the property and building lately occupied by McClain & Cook, in that place, and will shortly open a dry goods and grocery store.

—Gregg Post has lately adorned its room by two very handsome desks for the commander and adjutant, and also embellished the walls with several beautiful pictures.

Personal Mention.

Rev. John Hewitt preached at the State College yesterday afternoon.

Mr. John Bartroff, the Bishop street wagon maker, attended the Clearfield fair last week.

Miss Carie Brugger, of Unionville, is visiting her friend, Miss Flora Bitner, in Centre Hall.

Mr. Frank Keenan, of New York city, is visiting his relatives and friends at his old home in this place.

Mr. Daniel Garman has returned home from a trip to Saratoga, Elmira and a few more of the Northern cities.

Captain Amos Mullen and family returned home Saturday evening from a pleasure trip to York, Pa., and the sea shore.

Mr. Edward L. Gray, of the News, is still in Maine, and his friends will be glad to know that he is recovering part of his lost health.

Mr. Walter Whippo, of Hublersburg, is visiting friends at Loveville. Mr. Whippo is one of Centre county's active and successful pedagogues.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Lingle returned Saturday evening, and were met at the train by many of their friends. They occupy rooms at the Bush House.

Miss Ida Mackey, daughter of ex-Congressman Mackey, and Miss Lizzie Harris, both of Lock Haven, are visiting Mrs. Wilber Reeder, on Allegheny street.

Osceola Reveille: R. M. Magee, Esq., of Bellefonte, manager of the Brooklyn Life Insurance Company for Pennsylvania, called in to see us on Thursday. Mr. Magee is a lawyer and a very pleasant and agreeable gentleman.

Superintendent William Baldwin, late of the Philadelphia and Erie road but now general manager of all lines controlled by the Pennsylvania company west of Pittsburg, passed through Bellefonte Saturday morning in a special car for Williamsport.

Hon. S. H. Yocum returned Thursday morning from a hasty visit to Catawissa, Ashland, Pottsville, and a number of other towns in that direction, and also tarried a short time with his brother, Rev. E. H. Yocum, at Williamsport, who is presiding elder of that district.

Mr. George Waite, one of Bellefonte's boys employed abroad, who had been called home by the accidental shooting of his father, returned to his place of business at Williamsport Thursday morning. George is quite a promising young man, and an excellent iron worker.

Miss Lizzie Homan and Mrs. Bella Dunfee, of Johns'own, and Miss Amanda Barnhart, of Boggs township, are visiting at the residence of J. C. Weaver, Esq., on Penn street. Miss Barnhart is a sister of Mrs. Weaver, and Miss Homan and Mrs. Dunfee are intimate friends of the family.

The friends of our old and respected townsman, Mr. Harvey McClure, will be pained to learn that he is confined to his residence on Bishop street by a severe bealing on the left breast. How dangerous his condition we do not know, but his friends hope him a speedy recovery.

Our old citizen and former hosteler, D. P. Peters, was in town yesterday, and in reply to a question remarked that he had "just dropped from above." "Pete," as he is familiarly called, looks very much like a celestial visitor, and is probably the forerunner of another comet.

Miss Jennie M. Gerberich, of Lebanon, Pa., and Miss Ella Gerberich, of Michigan, the former a sister and latter a cousin of Councilman Gerberich, of Thomas street, are visiting at the residence of the latter. Both are interesting ladies, and will remain in Bellefonte several days before returning to their homes.

Mr. Alfred Nicholls, for several years connected with Valentines' stores in this place, will in a few days depart for Brooklyn N. Y., where he has secured a position as manager in a large grocery establishment. Mr. Nicholls, during his residence in our town, has made many warm friends, all of whom will regret his departure.

Mr. Robert Gilmore has returned from Milton, whither he was called by the dangerous illness of his brother Charley, well known to many in Bellefonte, who has been suffering for some weeks from the effects of a severe attack of typhoid pneumonia, but at last accounts was resting easier. His symptoms now show signs of improvement.

Miss Lizzie Shortlidge, one of Bellefonte's popular young ladies, departed on the early train on Tuesday morning of last week for Maplewood Institute, in Concordville, Delaware county, Pa., where she will spend the winter months receiving instruction in different branches under the careful tutorship of her uncle, Joseph Shortlidge, A. M., the principle, and late President of the Pennsylvania State College. Miss Lizzie's many friends will miss her presence very much.

Don't Laugh at Breaking Hearts.

The following lines we take from an exchange and present it to our readers with a full endorsement of the beautiful though delicate sentiment it conveys: "Do not laugh at the drunken man reeling through the street, however ludicrous the sight may be; just stop and think. He is going home to some tender heart that will throb with intense agony, some doting mother, perhaps, who will grieve over the downfall of her once sinless boy; or it may be a fond wife, whose heart will almost burst with grief as she views the destruction of her idol; or it may be a loving sister who will shed bitter tears over the degradation of her brother, shorn of his manliness and self-respect. Rather drop a tear in silent sympathy with those hearts so keenly sensitive and tender, and yet so proud and loyal that they cannot accept sympathy tendered them either in word, look or act, although it might fall on their crushed and wounded hearts as refreshing as the summer dew upon the withered plants.

A Pleasant Surprise.

A large party of friends, including both married and single people, of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Wolf, paid them a pleasant surprise Thursday at their residence on Allegheny street, the occasion being a birthday anniversary of Mr. Wolf. The time was spent pleasantly by all present in dancing and games of different kinds, and at the hour for "sich things" an elegant repast was served, to which all did justice and even more. At a reasonable hour they departed for their homes, feeling that they had put in a night pleasantly and profitably, and wishing Mr. Wolf a continuation of his present good health and prosperous condition.

—Mr. R. A. Beck, Bellefonte's musical prodigy, desires us to make a public announcement to a couple of young men who interfered with the peacefulness of one of his delightful morning concerts, which took place at an early hour yesterday morning before the residence of Dr. Hibler, and say that they "hef no more sense as two niggas," and that he can make more noise with his clarionette than they can with "more as a dozen tin horns," and a base drum to boot. But seriously, however, we think Beck ought to be protected in his rights, and for the sake of his peace let him blow his clarionette to his heart's content. It does nobody harm, and as long as it amuses him let him keep it up.

—Civil Engineer David Butts has returned from Tyrone, where he was engaged in an important survey in which the title to a portion of the land on which the Ward House stands was at stake. There had been a dispute between the Ray heirs and John T. Fowler in regard to certain lands, the former claiming that Mr. Fowler's buildings occupied a portion of their ground, and the survey was made to settle this matter, which, however, resulted in favor of the latter.

—The friends of Mr. Harry Ray, whose sickness we have already announced, will be pained to learn that he died Thursday night at 7 o'clock, at the residence of his father on Thomas street. Funeral obseques were held at his home on Saturday afternoon at one o'clock, which were largely attended.

—Town Council met at their usual place of meeting Monday night. No business of importance was transacted outside of taking the new Lamb street bridge off the hands of the contractor. Market Clerk Shaughensy returned $7.20 as the amount of his collections for the last two weeks.
